Results of flood planning finally start to surface

by BILL HILL

Paddling row boats down Arlington Heights streets was fun for a while when heavy rains soaked the village in August 1972.

But when the living room furniture began floating, it was time to drop anchor and demand action.

The results are beginning to show as the plans developed by the village and the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding come to fruition.

Now, four years after the waters receded from the Aug. 25 storm, more than $4 million has been spent on flood control plans and projects.

The flood control projects under contruction constitute Phase One of the $18 million flood control program put together by the Citizens Action Committee headed by Trustee Frank Palmatier.

BUT ALL FUNDS from last year's $3.5 million flood control bond issue are committed. The village now is gearing up for Phase Two, which will mean another bond issue and tax increases for residents.

"Naturally, with passage of time there's bound to be some loss of memory of what happened in 1972, but I think there's still a continuing concern and support for the flood control program. I know there is among village officials and board members," Palmatier said.

There has not been a torrential downpour to match the one on Aug. 25, 1972 when about three inches of rain fell in less than three hours.

The knee-deep water in basements in many cases included raw sewage caused by backup of the sanitary sewers.

MANY HOMES were surrounded by water. On S. Patton Avenue, where Palmatier lives, 16 homes in one block had flooded living rooms.

"I was just on the shoreline, so I didn't have that problem. But I did have a good view," Palmatier said.

In Surrey Ridge West, children paddled canoes. And several miles away on N. Dunton Avenue, problems reached such frustrating proportions that at 2 a.m. neighbors near the intersection of Thomas and Dunton streets placed a barricade across the street. Residents said it was needed because cars traveling through the

"I hate to think back about it. It was horrible," Deanna Herda said as she retold her experiences during the storm of Aug. 25, 1972.

Mrs. Herda, 1417 N. Dunton Ave., was driving her car on Arlington Heights Road during the storm — until the stranded vehicles stopped her. Gradually she made her way home.

The Herdas lost most of the furniture in their downstairs recreation room, including a piano, which also was nearly covered by the water.

Much of the flooding on N. Dunton Avenue was caused by the Hasbrook retention basin overflowing. "When it filled up, it was like a river turning down Dunton from Thomas," Mrs. Herda said.

The Hasbrook reservoir has since been dug deeper.

Surrey Ridge residents on the south end of the village were used to their streets flooding, so they didn't expect the water to continue rising until their homes were flooded.

"When it came up to the house we got all the furniture carried upstairs. It only took our basement, which is 8 feet deep, 15 minutes to fill up," said Mrs. Kenneth Bryza.

Mrs. Bryza is quick to praise village officials for the flood control work that has been done

"THAT DAY was a nightmare, but they have done a marvelous job. The street doesn't even flood now," she said.

Many Surrey Ridge residents took advantage of the situation, according to John J. Finnerty, who sailed his sailboat down the street two blocks to a retention basin where "all the kids in the area were swimming."

"I guess we made the best of a bad situation," he said.

So did the clown at the Elks Club circus. When heavy rains ripped a

Fund plans for garage on agenda

Alternative methods of financing the proposed multi-level parking garage for the central business district will be presented to the Arlington heights village board tonight.

The public meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The financing proposals will be presented by Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson.

Hanson was directed to prepare the report when the board deferred a decision on whether to create a special taxing district to support downtown improvements, including the 500-car garage at Vail Avenue and Sigwalt Street on village-owned property.

THE SPECIAL taxing district was proposed by Trustee August C. Bettman, chairman of a committee studying downtown redevelopment.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the board's finance committee, said enough property owners in the area would object to a special district to block the proposal. Palmatier predicted general obligation bonds would be needed to finance the $1.5 million garage.

If the village board should decide to create a special taxing district, 51 per cent of the affected property owners must file objections to halt it.

Creation of the special tax district has drawn opposition from northside businessmen who said the garage would not benefit them. Dr. Frank J. Psota, a dentist with offices on the north side, said the tax district would "hurt rather than help small businessmen."

ALSO ON THE board's agenda is the proposed anti-vandalism ordinance, designed to bring violations under the jurisdiction of the local branch of the circuit court and to establish parental responsibility for the illegal acts of their children.

The ordinance, if adopted, would make parents liable for damages inflicted by their children and create fines up to $500.

A controversial section that would have required parents to seek counseling has been stricken in the revised ordinance by Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

The ordinance was proposed by the Zero Vandalism Committee, chaired by Trustee Robert H. Miller.

Weather it's good or bad, the briefer is always there

by PAT GERLACH

Jim Szajkovics spends most of his working hours "under the weather."

But Szajkovics' job has absolutely no ill effect on his health. In fact, Jim is eager to tell how much he enjoys his work.

And hundreds of private pilots with whom Szajkovics comes in contact each day can tell you they depend on the vital service he performs.

Szajkovics is one of about 49 weather briefers who provide 24-hour staffing for the Federal Aviation Administration's Flight Service Station at DuPage County Airport, West Chicago.

THE BRIEFERS are responsible for furnishing private pilots in most areas of northern Illinois with current and future weather advisories. Their weather information is always accurate, coming from the latest in monitoring equipment as well as direct teletype lines with the United States Weather Service.

The DuPage flight service station is the third busiest in the United States, having aided more than 925,000 pilots each year for the past several years.

The station is a support function for Chicago Center Air Traffic Control Center, Aurora.

Szajkovics says the objectives of a weather briefer's job are two-fold. "We talk to private pilots on the telephone, giving them weather information before they leave the ground and also carry on air-to-ground conversations."

During each briefer's eight-hour shift, he will spend half his tour of duty in the pilot briefing room, taking telephone calls from pilots who plan to fly the same day.

"And, we are also the only source private pilots have for entering their flight plans with the FAA," Szajkovics said.

THE OTHER half of a briefer's work day is spent in the air-to-ground room where he talks by radio to airborne pilots.

Briefers, he said, have the authority to prohibit a student pilot from flying in bad weather. However, with experienced pilots, the briefer will caution the person "depending on the pilot's own particular qualifications."

Szajkovics considers weather briefers "a lot more personal" than air-traffic controllers. "The controllers talk to airplanes, you know, telling them to climb to so many feet or descend to a certain altitude, but we talk to people."

But Szajkovics is quick to emphasize his admiration for air-traffic controllers.

"These people really do a terrific job and always work under tension. And we ought to know, because most of us briefers were 'washouts' from Chicago Center's training program," Szajkovics said, explaining the center experiences a 60 per cent attrition rate for trainees.

"Our jobs as weather briefers are very demanding, too, though. I guess you could equate our responsibility with that as a captain in an airplane," he said.

BRIEFER TRAINING consists of at least 17 weeks of intensive "book work" and classroom experience in the Oklahoma "West Point" FAA runs for its weathermen.

Briefers occasionally experience very tense moments and in a few cases have been required to "talk a pilot down."

Szajkovics told of a busy Sunday afternoon in late March when the air-to-ground room radios picked up a pilot urgently calling "anyone who can hear me."

It was the case of a student pilot having become disoriented on a flight from Kankakee to Midway.

"It was a windy day and he had veered from his course without realizing what happened. When we picked him up he was over Lake Michigan and didn't realize it," Szajkovics said.

Working with another briefer who, using special navigational aids, was able to pick up and chart the pilot's course, Szajkovics talked the aircraft safely into DuPage County Airport. "When the episode started, the pilot was about 40 miles northeast of us and I had him in and down in 30 min-

Torrential downpour, flood kill 60 in Rockies

by DEBORAH PRAZIER

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — A mountain river swollen by 10-inch rains surged from its banks and swept away campers and fishermen in a wooded Rocky Mountain canyon Sunday. Towns were isolated and cars, trucks and cabins were tossed about like toys.

Authorities said at least 60 persons died in the flash flood and scores were injured or stranded in the disaster which came on Colorado's 100th anniversary as a state.

Renewed rains hit the flooded area before dark Sunday, hampering rescue operations. Authorities feared additional flooding in the popular campground area about 45 miles northwest of Denver.

"We have 40 bodies now in the mortuary," said Larimer County Sheriff Bob Watson. "We know of 20 others that we haven't been able to get to yet."

A coroner's spokesman said identification of the dead and missing would not be made until Monday.

Damage alone to Bureau of Reclamation equipment along the 35-mile stretch of the Big Thompson River was estimated at $1 million.

Sheriff's deputies estimated about 4,000 persons were in the canyon when heavy rains began Saturday night. Of the survivors, many were taken to safety by helicopters.

About 400 survivors who escaped exploding propane gas tanks detonated by floating logs in the river were tak-

Foreigners urged to leave quake areas

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese officials warned Sunday a new earthquake might hit Peking at any time and urged foreign embassies to evacuate all nonessential personnel. More than half of the U.S. dependents were immediately booked on flights out of China.

Most other embassies also began preparing to move dependents to other places in China or outside the country.

David Dean, deputy chief of the U.S. Liaison Office, said 19 of the U.S. dependents had reservations on flights to Tokyo and that the remaining 11 will leave within the next few days.

He said most will go to Tokyo, Hong Kong or Manila.

In a telephone conversation with UPI in Hong Kong, Dean said China offered to help in the evacuation.

The offer came in a statement issued by the Chinese Foreign Ministry that indicated Peking might be hit by a new earthquake at any time within the month of August, Dean said.

A quake in the northeastern province of Hopeh last Wednesday rocked

It's been smooth sailing for the crew of the Radich

by KEN VANDERBEEK

Northeast of Navy Pier, Chicago, the sailboats of yacht club members dotted Lake Michigan under an array of clouds Sunday. The small crafts seemed like toy boats or ships from Lilliput next to the 205-foot long Christian Radich of Norway, arriving from Mackinac Island, Mich.

As it sailed in toward its docking area, several crew members took down the few sails that helped propel the tall ship into port. Only the top sails had been rigged during the passage along most of the Illinois coast of Lake Michigan. So the engines took over where the wind failed.

"Lively on the upper top," one of the officers commanded. "Ease those sails now."

The Radich, despite its stateliness, appeared slightly clumsy when it prepared to dock at 10 a.m. But as its motors quieted, it was again a graceful sailing vessel.

THE RADICH'S five-day stopover in Chicago had begun. The 104 crewmen were welcomed with a glittering display of firecrackers. Mayor Daley and more than 20,000 spectators also were on hand for the festivities.

Traffic was worse than on days when Cub fans are en route to a Saturday doubleheader — even when the northside team is winning. The earliest spectators had stood on line since 8:30 a.m. for the 1 p.m. tour.

"The visit to America has been so wonderful — so many shows of goodwill and fantastic people here," said First Mate Jan Fjeld-Hansen in broken English. "In Newport, R.I., (the first stop) everybody yelled 'Welcome to America' from their boats."

The sailors disembarked at lunchtime as loudspeakers played the Nutcracker Suite and Norwegian tunes. The cadets, those who were not responsible for taking the bags of garbage off the ship, walked off first.

THE NORWEGIANS were fed McDonald's hamburgers and received pens and woolen McDonald's hats. Ten feet to the right, natives munched on picnic lunches while waiting for the visitation period.

Most of the crew are blond. Some, even the 15-year-old trainees, display tattoos, and several of the officers have beards. Eighty of the 87 cadets puff constantly on cigarets.

"In Norway, cigarets are very expensive," one trainee said. "We can't smoke at home so we do here where it is cheaper."

Maybe smoking relieves what one called "the worst chore" of a cadet. "We have to wash the deck every day — top to bottom," he said. "Sometimes it is not too fun."

HANS FRIIS-JACOBSEN, assistant director in the Norwegian Information Service, New York City, said though, "Everybody has been so enthusiastic that they (cadets) will be spoiled when they get home." He meant spoiled by America more than by the chance to sail across the ocean. For sailing has its unromantic qualities too.

"One cadet went home to England because he was sick," Fjeld-Hansen said. Oh, do some of those teen-agers get seasick? "Everybody gets seasick for the first time," the First Mate said.

Seasickness or no, most of the American visitors on the Radich this week, especially the younger ones, would probably give anything to travel the remaining route on the Great Lakes under her sails.

Novelist Jan de Hartog of the Netherlands understood this feeling. He once wrote, "To us to be grown up meant to sail."

Police probe link in prostitution case

Cook County Sheriff's Police are investigating whether an alleged house of prostitution recently uncovered in Leyden Township is linked to the former Pleasure Island Spa in Elk Grove Township. Police last week arrested two persons on prostitution charges at the County Photo Inc., 10405 W. Diversey Ave., Leyden Township. Police said the Elk Grove Township spa at 2420 Oakton Ave. recently changed its name to County Photo. Gary W. Killam, 28, of Chicago, was charged with keeping a house of prostitution and Debra Fifer, 22, of Chicago, was charged with prostitution, in connection with the Leyden Township incident. Police said the arrests were made when an undercover agent went into the Leyden Township firm and made arrangements with Killam to take nude photographs of Fifer. Police said an offer of prostitution by Fifer then was made to the undercover agent.

NORTRAN loan study tonight

A request for a $37,000 emergency loan to help the financially strapped North Suburban Mass Transit District will be considered tonight by the Des Plaines City Council. The 21 communities served by NORTRAN have been asked for a total of $300,000 to ensure bus operations through Sept. 7. The district operates four intracity bus routes in Des Plaines. Evanston and Skokie already have agreed to give funds to NORTRAN, while Wheeling and several other communities have turned down the funding requests. Mayor Herbert H. Behrel has recommended the council approve the emergency funding request. "I think it would be a shame to let them shut down," Behrel said. The funds are needed because the RTA budget, which provided the bulk of NORTRAN's money, was not approved until after its legal deadline and the courts must rule on its validity before any money is spent.

It's been smooth sailing for the crew of the Radich

by KEN VANDERBEEK

Northeast of Navy Pier, Chicago, the sailboats of yacht club members dotted Lake Michigan under an array of clouds Sunday. The small crafts seemed like toy boats or ships from Lilliput next to the 205-foot long Christian Radich of Norway, arriving from Mackinac Island, Mich.

As it sailed in toward its docking area, several crew members took down the few sails that helped propel the tall ship into port. Only the top sails had been rigged during the passage along most of the Illinois coast of Lake Michigan. So the engines took over where the wind failed.

the officers commanded. "Ease those sails now."

The Radich, despite its stateliness, appeared slightly clumsy when it prepared to dock at 10 a.m. But as its motors quieted, it was again a graceful sailing vessel.

THE RADICH'S five-day stopover in Chicago had begun. The 104 crewmen were welcomed with a glittering display of firecrackers. Mayor Daley and more than 20,000 spectators also were on hand for the festivities.

Traffic was worse than on days when Cub fans are en route to a Saturday doubleheader — even when the northside team is winning. The earliest spectators had stood on line since 8:30 a.m. for the 1 p.m. tour.

"The visit to America has been so wonderful — so many shows of goodwill and fantastic people here," said First Mate Jan Fjeld-Hansen in broken English. "In Newport, R.I., (the first stop) everybody yelled 'Welcome to America' from their boats."

The sailors disembarked at lunchtime as loudspeakers played the Nutcracker Suite and Norwegian tunes. The cadets, those who were not responsible for taking the bags of garbage off the ship, walked off first.

THE NORWEGIANS were fed McDonald's hamburgers and received pens and woolen McDonald's hats. Ten feet to the right, natives munched on picnic lunches while waiting for the visitation period.

Most of the crew are blond. Some, even the 15-year-old trainees, display tattoos, and several of the officers have beards. Eighty of the 87 cadets puff constantly on cigarets.

"In Norway, cigarets are very expensive," one trainee said. "We can't smoke at home so we do here where it is cheaper."

Maybe smoking relieves what one called "the worst chore" of a cadet. "We have to wash the deck every day — top to bottom," he said. "Sometimes it is not too fun."

HANS FRIIS-JACOBSEN, assistant director in the Norwegian Information Service, New York City, said though, "Everybody has been so enthusiastic that they (cadets) will be spoiled when they get home." He meant spoiled by America more than by the chance to sail across the ocean. For sailing has its unromantic qualities too.

"One cadet went home to England because he was sick," Fjeld-Hansen said. Oh, do some of those teen-agers get seasick? "Everybody gets seasick for the first time," the First Mate said.

Seasickness or no, most of the American visitors on the Radich this week, especially the younger ones, would probably give anything to travel the remaining route on the Great Lakes under her sails.

Novelist Jan de Hartog of the Netherlands understood this feeling. He once wrote, "To us to be grown up meant to sail."

Police probe link in prostitution case

Cook County Sheriff's Police are investigating whether an alleged house of prostitution recently uncovered in Leyden Township is linked to the former Pleasure Island Spa in Elk Grove Township. Police last week arrested two persons on prostitution charges at the County Photo Inc., 10405 W. Diversey Ave., Leyden Township. Police said the Elk Grove Township spa at 2420 Oakton Ave. recently changed its name to County Photo. Gary W. Killam, 28, of Chicago, was charged with keeping a house of prostitution and Debra Fifer, 22, of Chicago, was charged with prostitution, in connection with the Leyden Township incident. Police said the arrests were made when an undercover agent went into the Leyden Township firm and made arrangements with Killam to take nude photographs of Fifer. Police said an offer of prostitution by Fifer then was made to the undercover agent.

NORTRAN loan study tonight

A request for a $37,000 emergency loan to help the financially strapped North Suburban Mass Transit District will be considered tonight by the Des Plaines City Council. The 21 communities served by NORTRAN have been asked for a total of $300,000 to ensure bus operations through Sept. 7. The district operates four intracity bus routes in Des Plaines. Evanston and Skokie already have agreed to give funds to NORTRAN, while Wheeling and several other communities have turned down the funding requests. Mayor Herbert H. Behrel has recommended the council approve the emergency funding request. "I think it would be a shame to let them shut down," Behrel said. The funds are needed because the RTA budget, which provided the bulk of NORTRAN's money, was not approved until after its legal deadline and the courts must rule on its validity before any money is spent.

Staying cool . . .

AROUND THE NATION: Showers and thunderstorms are expected in portions of the Eastern Gulf coastal region and throughout the Plains region. Generally fair weather elsewhere.

AROUND THE STATE: North: Fair, with a high of 75 to 80, low in the 50s. South: Fair. High in the upper 70s to low 80s, low in the 50s.

SATELLITE PHOTO taken at noon Sunday shows bright overcast cloudiness over New England extending south in a broad band over the Atlantic Ocean. Broken cloudiness is over New York state and Pennsylvania and extends in a broad band southwestward to Kentucky and Tennessee and then westward into eastern Kansas. A large area of heavy clouds extends westward from Nebraska across the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast from northern California northward to Washington. Broken cloudiness is seen from Utah south to New Mexico. Skies are cloudless elsewhere.

Railroad tankers

'A miracle they didn't explode'

BLANCHESTER, Ohio (UPI) — A 10-car Baltimore & Ohio R.R. freight train derailed Sunday morning in a residential section, overturning two tank cars loaded with "the most dangerous gas railroads carry."

Railroad spokesman Tom Johnson said the tankers had not ruptured and "there's only one chance in a million of them leaking."

"Neither of the cars were damaged and we don't expect to have any problem with them," he added.

Many families fled their homes and others were advised to leave. There were no injuries reported.

Mayor Madeline Loftin said this southwestern Ohio community of 3,500 persons was "sitting on a keg of dynamite as the tankers have the most dangerous gas railroads carry."

She said the derailment occurred from an unknown cause about 9 a.m., adjacent to a Standard Oil Co. of Ohio bulk depot and only 50 yards from many homes. One resident said some persons left home so quickly that their breakfasts were still on tables and stoves.

Mrs. Loftin said railroad officials recommended the evacuation because they said fumes from the ethylene oxide, a flammable and toxic gas, inside the tank cars could prove fatal. The gas is used for sterilization and fumigation.

"They said if the fumes so much as touch you, they would burn you before you could get your clothes off," she said. The mayor said officials told her the chemical's temperature rises to about 1,000 degrees when it comes into contact with air.

Blanchester policeman Glen Thompson said "it's a miracle the gas tankers didn't explode." He said area residents had been advised to leave but could remain if they wanted to, adding they would be ordered out if a leak developed.

Thompson estimated it might take three days to clear away the derailed cars and repair nearly one half mile of ripped up track. The railroad rushed wrecking equipment to the scene within hours and a representative "of a Texas chemical company" was flown to the scene to work with railroad officials, the police chief said.

Several derailed cars were stacked up side by side, resting perpendicular to the track near the tangled rails. Other cars, carrying miscellaneous freight including aluminum products, were scattered nearby.

Holds on to tire, saves self

'Like a tidal wave hit me'

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — A fisherman whose truck was swept from the road by a four-foot surge of water from the flooded Big Thompson River Sunday said he punched out a window and clung to a floating tire "for dear life" before reaching shore.

"All of a sudden my four-wheel drive (vehicle) went into the river," said Edward T. Swann. "It was like a tidal wave hit me. It was scary going down the river.

"I couldn't breathe any more. Water filled the cab. I hit a window with my fist and got out somehow."

Swann, 31, a carpenter for YMCA of the Rockies at Loveland, a town of approximately 20,000 persons east of the flooded canyon, said he floated downstream for "at least a mile."

"I saw a tire, still on the rim, floating by me. I grabbed it and held on for dear life," Swann said in a telephone interview. "It was easy to grab the hole in the middle of the wheel. I am lucky to be alive and I'm just thankful my little girls weren't with me."

Swann's daughters, Andrea 7, Sheri, 6, and Allison, 4, had decided at the last minute not to go with their father on a fishing and camping trip in Cache La Poudre River canyon west of Fort Collins, Colo.

Swann said he started home late Saturday night through the Big Thompson River canyon. "I caught my limit in the Poudre and decided to come back home because the weather was getting bad," he said.

"It was hailing and rocks were falling down off the cliffs," he said.

Swann drove a back road from the Poudre canyon toward the Big Thompson, in northern Colorado high country near Rocky Mountain National Park.

Swann said there was only an estimated two inches of water on the bridge as he drove on U.S. Rte. 34 west of Loveland about 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

"I thought I could drive right through it," he said. "I got halfway through and all of a sudden there was about four feet of water. All of a sudden I was under water."

He jammed a fist through the vehicle's window, climbed out and was swept downstream. A highway patrolman finally pulled him from the river.

"I was dodging logs and everything," he said. "It was crazy. It was the worst thing that ever happened in my life. I don't know how I made it. I'm from (New) Jersey. We've only lived out here eight months. I know what a tidal wave looks like. Thank God I'm alive."

The flooding of the river was triggered by 6-10 inches of overnight rains and the river crested at 10-15 feet — 10 times its normal depth.

At one point during rescue operations, an estimated 2,500 persons were stranded before Army helicopters evacuated motels and trailer parks in small towns and communities isolated by floodwaters.

National Guardsmen also were dropped by helicopter throughout the wooded canyon and told survivors to group and form the letters "F" for food and "W" for water if they saw rescue aircraft.

Gov. Richard Lamm and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., sent a telegram to President Ford asking for immediate aid.

"We're still finding bodies," said Capt. William Thomas of the Colorado State Patrol. "The canyon was full of traffic and campers. There was hardly any warning."

4 die in fire in home for elderly

Four elderly persons perished and eight others were hurt, three seriously, Sunday in a swift-spreading midnight blaze which swept through the second floor of a boarding home for the elderly in Sebring, Fla. Firefighters said all of the deaths and most of the injuries were due to smoke inhalation. Fire Chief V.L. Smoak said it appeared the blaze may have been caused by a defective electric fan in the room of one of the residents.

Scientists probing Mars oxygen data

Viking 1 scientists Sunday received more biology data from the lander on Mars and tried to determine if large amounts of oxygen from the planet's soil indicates some chemical reaction or just unusual chemical changes. Dr. Harold Klein, leader of the project's biology team, announced Saturday something in the Martian soil causes unexpected chemical reactions that may mimic biological activity. But he didn't rule out the possibility of bacterial life itself. He said the data must be viewed "very, very carefully." Early data from the tests made in small cylindrical chambers in a typewriter-sized laboratory indicate an oxygen concentration 15 times higher than expected.

Death rate drops to lowest level

The U.S. death rate dropped to its lowest in history during 1975 but may have leveled off this year, government reports showed Sunday. Reports from the Census Bureau and the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare also indicate a continued slight decline in the U.S. birth rate, which reached a record low last year. Together, the statistics mean the U.S. population still is increasing, but more slowly.

Leftists charge Syria defying peace accord

Leftists Sunday charged Syrian troops were advancing on Moslem-held Sidon in defiance of a Syrian-Palestinian peace accord. In Beirut, rival gunmen traded rockets and mortars. The heaviest fighting was in the Moslem enclave of Nabaa in east Beirut and at the Palestinian camp of Tal Zaatar, under Christian siege for 42 days. In a suprise development, Damascus Radio announced Syrian Premier Mahmoud Al Ayoubi resigned Sunday and was succeeded by Maj. Gen. Abdel Rahman Khleifani, a former premier.

Nixon secretly OKd arms sale to Iran: panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard Nixon secretly ordered the government to sell Iran any conventional arms it wants, creating a vast and continuing flow of weapons now beyond Pentagon control, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee reported Sunday.

As a result of Nixon's July 1972 decision, it said, the United States has sold Iran an arsenal worth $10 billion.

The report said the Pentagon could not keep track of these sales and former Defense Sec. James Schlesinger finally appointed a secret agent in 1973 to find out what was going on.

But Schlesinger's move backfired, the report said, when Richard Hollock, his agent, eventually became an Iranian government adviser on U.S. weaponry.

"U.S. arms sales to Iran. . . have been out of control," said Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., in releasing the 59-page Foreign Relations Committee report.

Peking and Tientsin, China's second and third largest cities after Shanghai, and almost destroyed Tangshan, a city of one million persons located about 100 miles southeast of Peking.

It was the strongest earthquake in 12 years.

The quake, which registered 8.3 on the open-ended Richter scale, was followed 15 hours later by an aftershock of almost equal magnitude in the same coastal region.

The Japanese newspaper Asahi reported Saturday that the death toll from the two quakes may reach into the hundreds of thousands.

Chinese authorities have given no official casualty figures, saying only that the quake "caused great losses to people's lives and property."

Because of damage to houses and the threat of a new quake, hundreds of thousands of Peking residents have been living in tents or on the street.

Dean said it appears the capital will be kept on an earthquake alert for at least a month.

Railroad tankers

'A miracle they didn't explode'

BLANCHESTER, Ohio (UPI) — A 10-car Baltimore & Ohio R.R. freight train derailed Sunday morning in a residential section, overturning two tank cars loaded with "the most dangerous gas railroads carry."

Railroad spokesman Tom Johnson said the tankers had not ruptured and "there's only one chance in a million of them leaking."

"Neither of the cars were damaged and we don't expect to have any problem with them," he added.

Many families fled their homes and others were advised to leave. There were no injuries reported.

Mayor Madeline Loftin said this southwestern Ohio community of 3,500 persons was "sitting on a keg of dynamite as the tankers have the most dangerous gas railroads carry."

She said the derailment occurred from an unknown cause about 9 a.m., adjacent to a Standard Oil Co. of Ohio bulk depot and only 50 yards from many homes. One resident said some persons left home so quickly that their breakfasts were still on tables and stoves.

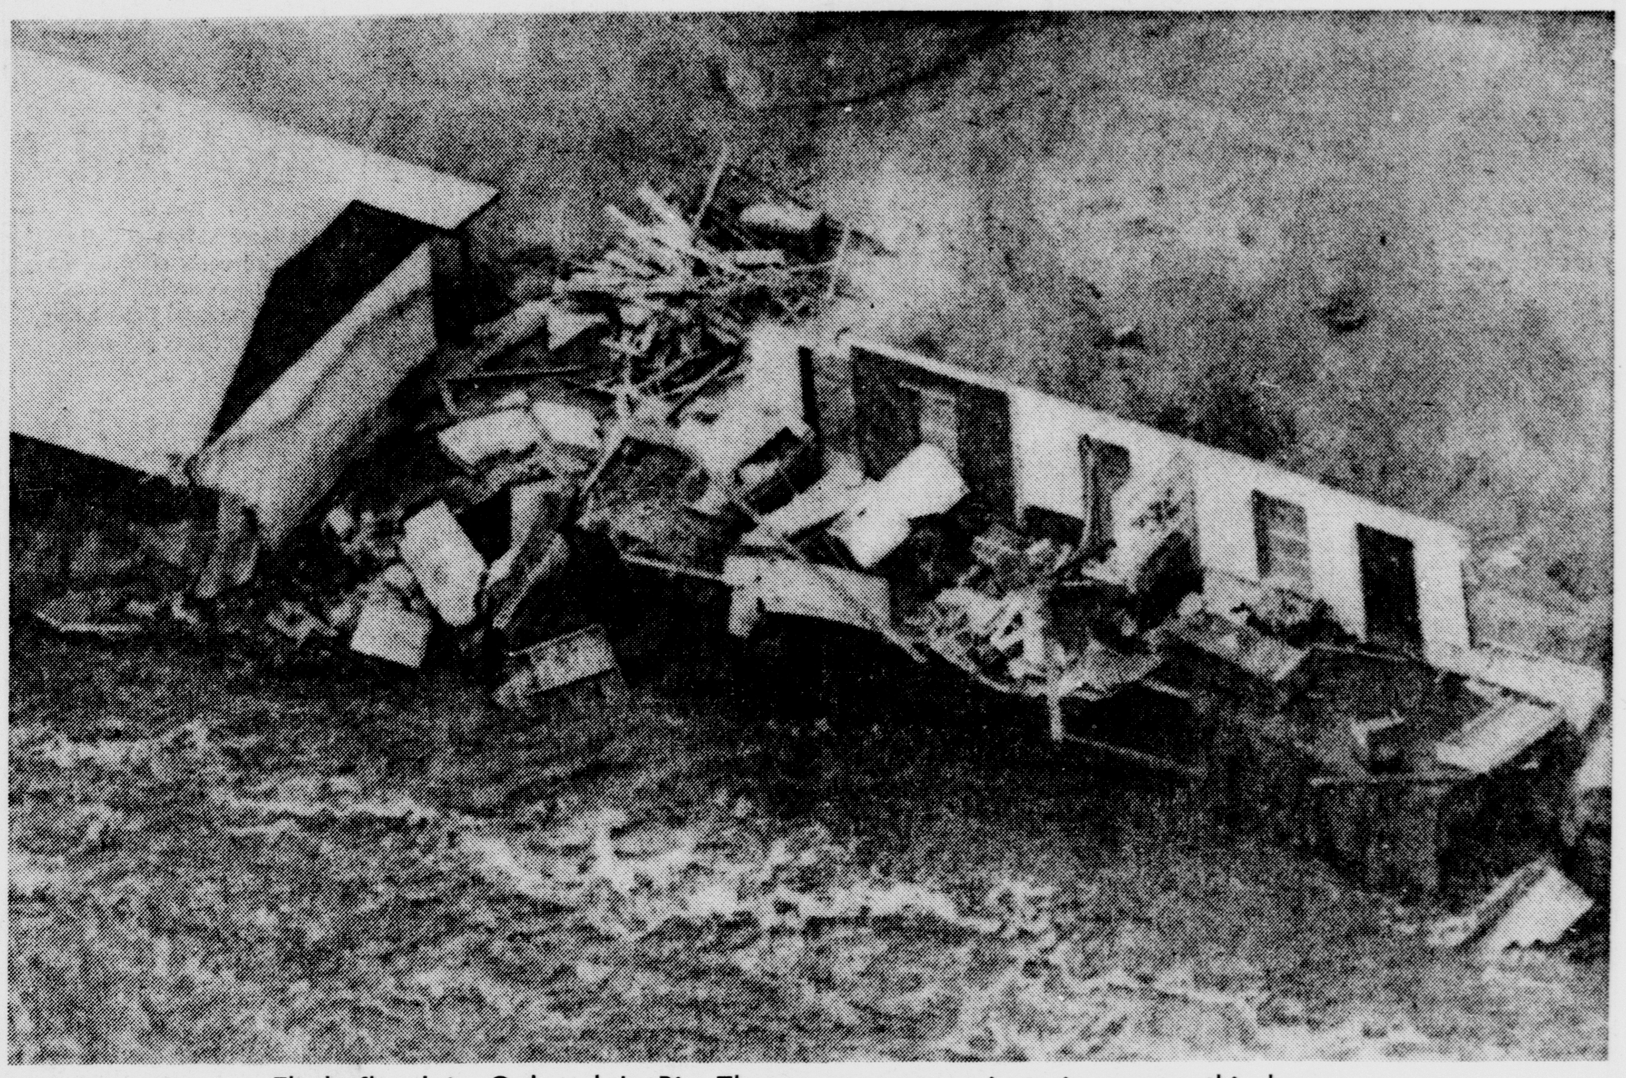

Mrs. Loftin said railroad officials recommended the evacuation because they said fumes from the ethylene oxide, a flammable and toxic gas, inside the tank cars could prove fatal. The gas is used for sterilization and fumigation.

"They said if the fumes so much as touch you, they would burn you before you could get your clothes off," she said. The mayor said officials told her the chemical's temperature rises to about 1,000 degrees when it comes into contact with air.

Blanchester policeman Glen Thompson said "it's a miracle the gas tankers didn't explode." He said area residents had been advised to leave but could remain if they wanted to, adding they would be ordered out if a leak developed.

Thompson estimated it might take three days to clear away the derailed cars and repair nearly one half mile of ripped up track. The railroad rushed wrecking equipment to the scene within hours and a representative "of a Texas chemical company" was flown to the scene to work with railroad officials, the police chief said.

Several derailed cars were stacked up side by side, resting perpendicular to the track near the tangled rails. Other cars, carrying miscellaneous freight including aluminum products, were scattered nearby.

Holds on to tire, saves self

'Like a tidal wave hit me'

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — A fisherman whose truck was swept from the road by a four-foot surge of water from the flooded Big Thompson River Sunday said he punched out a window and clung to a floating tire "for dear life" before reaching shore.

"All of a sudden my four-wheel drive (vehicle) went into the river," said Edward T. Swann. "It was like a tidal wave hit me. It was scary going down the river.

"I couldn't breathe any more. Water filled the cab. I hit a window with my fist and got out somehow."

Swann, 31, a carpenter for YMCA of the Rockies at Loveland, a town of approximately 20,000 persons east of the flooded canyon, said he floated downstream for "at least a mile."

"I saw a tire, still on the rim, floating by me. I grabbed it and held on for dear life," Swann said in a telephone interview. "It was easy to grab the hole in the middle of the wheel. I am lucky to be alive and I'm just thankful my little girls weren't with me."

McGrath, who lives only a few buildings away from the burned building, was charged with six counts of felony murder, six counts of murder, two counts of arson and one count of aggravated battery. He was arrested two hours after the fatal fire Saturday for allegedly setting a fire in his own apartment building, police investigator Ted O'Connor said. He set the fire because he was angry about being evicted from the building, O'Connor said. An investigation uncovered evidence linking McGrath to the fatal fire in the neighboring building, O'Connor said. A motive has not been determined for the second and fatal fire.

Herbal cigarets may impair health

Herbal cigarets, teas and capsules may cause unpleasant mental and physical reactions, according to a report in this week's Journal of the American Medical Assn. based in Chicago. Dr. Ronald Siegel of the UCLA school of medicine said the herbal products — readily available in health food stores and by mail order from suppliers and importers — contain substantial amounts of psychoactive substances. He said their use may result in a number of intoxications requiring medical attention. Siegel said 192 distinct herbs are commercially available as smoking substances, mostly in cigarets. Often the cigarets contain nonpsychoactive ingredients like yerba, santa, rosemary, thyme, mulein and spearmint. But nearly half of them do contain plants with known mind-altering effects, he said.

NAME THE PARK CONTEST

Land formerly occupied by the Army Nike base has been deeded by the federal government to the Arlington Heights Park District for development as a community park.

The park district plans a referendum in September to authorize development of an 18-hole golf course on the site, in conjunction with a flood control project for the southern part of the village.

The park district, with the cooperation of The Herald, is sponsoring a contest to name the new park.

HERE ARE THE RULES:

1) Names of persons, streets, subdivisions, or other geographic designations such as east, south, southeast, etc. will not be considered.

2) Entries will be given priority that relate to park features such as topography, natural assets, the purpose of the park or activities to be held in the park.

3) Entries must be made on a coupon published in The Herald. The coupon will be published once during the first week of August and will be repeated the third week of August.

4) Entries must be mailed to the park district administrative offices and must be postmarked prior to midnight on Sept. 1, 1976.

5) Entries will be judged by the Public Relations Committee of the Park Board and will be approved by the full Park Board at its Sept. 14 meeting.

6) Decisions of the judges will be final; the winning entry will be published in The Herald on Sept. 15.

7) Contest is limited to residents of the Arlington Heights Park District.

8) Prize will be $100 cash and one year's greens fees when the course opens for the winner and members of the immediate family living at home.

Farm land here threatened by mining: report

by LEA TONKIN

Prime Illinois farm land is threatened by unnecessary strip mining of coal, said a recent report by the Environmental Policy Institute (EPI), a Washington, D.C. based educational group.

The EPI report contends that "much of the agricultural land in Illinois which is underlain with strippable coal reserves is very good indeed, if not exceptional, and should be protected as one of the nation's most valuable resources."

The non-profit group said there is more deep minable coal in the four Illinois counties — Sangamon, Jefferson, Macoupin and Montgomery — than reserves suitable for strip mining. Despite this finding, the EPI said, strip mining activity continues to gobble some 5,000 to 6,000 acres of farm land in Illinois each year.

The environment

Using data compiled by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and University of Illinois researchers, EPI writer John Doyle Jr. said as much as 2 to 3 million acres of Illinois farmland stand to be affected by strip mining if present practices continue. "There are serious questions as to whether the high capability agricultural lands strip mined for coal can be returned to their original capacities within an acceptable period of time," he said. "The question in this instance is not whether agricultural lands can be reclaimed, but rather, can they be restored to their full productive capability."

NAME THE PARK CONTEST

Land formerly occupied by the Army Nike base has been deeded by the federal government to the Arlington Heights Park District for development as a community park.

The park district plans a referendum in September to authorize development of an 18-hole golf course on the site, in conjunction with a flood control project for the southern part of the village.

The park district, with the cooperation of The Herald, is sponsoring a contest to name the new park.

HERE ARE THE RULES:

1) Names of persons, streets, subdivisions, or other geographic designations such as east, south, southeast, etc. will not be considered.

2) Entries will be given priority that relate to park features such as topography, natural assets, the purpose of the park or activities to be held in the park.

3) Entries must be made on a coupon published in The Herald. The coupon will be published once during the first week of August and will be repeated the third week of August.

4) Entries must be mailed to the park district administrative offices and must be postmarked prior to midnight on Sept. 1, 1976.

5) Entries will be judged by the Public Relations Committee of the Park Board and will be approved by the full Park Board at its Sept. 14 meeting.

6) Decisions of the judges will be final; the winning entry will be published in The Herald on Sept. 15.

7) Contest is limited to residents of the Arlington Heights Park District.

8) Prize will be $100 cash and one year's greens fees when the course opens for the winner and members of the immediate family living at home.

Farm land here threatened by mining: report

by LEA TONKIN

Prime Illinois farm land is threatened by unnecessary strip mining of coal, said a recent report by the Environmental Policy Institute (EPI), a Washington, D.C. based educational group.

The EPI report contends that "much of the agricultural land in Illinois which is underlain with strippable coal reserves is very good indeed, if not exceptional, and should be protected as one of the nation's most valuable resources."

The non-profit group said there is more deep minable coal in the four Illinois counties — Sangamon, Jefferson, Macoupin and Montgomery — than reserves suitable for strip mining. Despite this finding, the EPI said, strip mining activity continues to gobble some 5,000 to 6,000 acres of farm land in Illinois each year.

The environment

Using data compiled by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and University of Illinois researchers, EPI writer John Doyle Jr. said as much as 2 to 3 million acres of Illinois farmland stand to be affected by strip mining if present practices continue. "There are serious questions as to whether the high capability agricultural lands strip mined for coal can be returned to their original capacities within an acceptable period of time," he said. "The question in this instance is not whether agricultural lands can be reclaimed, but rather, can they be restored to their full productive capability."

PUBLIC COMMENT on a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers study of urban water damage problems in the Chicago-South End of Lake Michigan (C-SeLM) will be accepted through Friday. Scheduled for completion in 1987, the study will include watersheds in Lake, Cook, DuPage and Will counties in Illinois and three northwest Indiana counties. The purpose of the study is to consider water damage problems caused by flooding and backup of sewers. Copies of the proposed study have been sent to area public libraries and planning agencies for review. Comment should be sent to U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Chicago District Office, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60604.

Flood plan results finally surface

flooded street were causing waves of water to roll into their living rooms.

Hostility toward village officials rose in direct proportion to the water. Many residents charged that the village had allowed too much development, and had not done enough planning to forestall such flooding.

EMOTIONS NOW have ebbed; but then, there has been no downpour as heavy as the one on Aug. 25, 1972, which caused more than $1 million in property damage.

In the wake of the storm, planning began in an attempt to prevent similar devastation.

The citizens committee headed by Palmatier was formed and building codes were upgraded. Quickly, a consultant was hired and the $18 million program was planned.

A $16.5 million flood control bond issue was held May 18, 1974, but was rejected by 67 votes.

The two main objections to the referendum were the plans to build twin reservoirs at Pioneer Park and the cost.

THE DECISION then was made by the village board to use its home-rule powers and issue general obligation bonds without voter approval. The flood control program was broken into phases, with $3.5 million worth of bonds and about $500,000 worth of utility tax revenue used to fund Phase One.

The Hasbrook retention reservoir project is nearing completion, the Hickory-Arlington Knolls project is half-finished, and plans have been prepared for the Surrey Ridge-Nike project and the Pioneer Park-Ridge Park-Sherwood project, according to Village Engineer Allen Sander.

Palmatier said he expects his committee to ask the village board to issue bonds in a couple months. They are needed to pay for the second Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin and the improvements needed along McDonald Creek, which includes an interim basin on the Lake Arlington site on Windsor Road, he said.

Palmatier said he hopes those two projects will be completed in 1977.

"Ultimately, all the proposed projects will be done. It's just a matter of when," he said.

WITH THE exception of the Lake Arlington project, most of the flood control work will be done in two years, Sander predicted.

The $10.4 million Lake Arlington project has been held up because the village has been unable to obtain federal funding for it. A grant totaling $500,000 has been received from the state for the purchase of the 113-acre site, which is to have a 60-acre lake.

A wolf in Republican Committee clothing?

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter is about to find out that his first 18 months for presidential politics were the easiest. All he has had to do so far was weather a Democratic fusillade against his accent, his ideas, his birthplace and his religion. Now comes the real fight, with the meanest, roughest, most conniving and shameless assault force in politics: the Republicans.

It's no telling if Carter is ready, but the GOP is. For months a team of sewer-stepping young people from the Republican National Committee has been searching under every rock in Georgia for Carter dirt. The task force, reminiscent of the Republican organizations which institutionalized Watergate, has compiled a roomful of anti-Carter information which in weeks to come will be released to the public through leaks, whispers and official indignations.

The material is said to be largely an accumulation of alleged contradictions in Carter's statements and activities. For example, the task force gleefully notes that Carter, who crows about morality in government, was so friendly with Spiro Agnew that in 1973 he personally urged the former vice president to stay in office despite of corruption against him. This story is not new, Carter having admitted it on several occasions. But drawn up in documented form, Republicans feel it might negatively impress the voters.

Aside from this small caliber ammunition, the RNC snoopers have reportedly uncovered what in essence are smoking guns. Details are secret, subsidies for his peanut farm operation. The Republican says the taxpayer cash has been substantial and wonders aloud "if it's not just possible Jimmy has become a millionaire the easy way." And he adds: "His business may have also propsered by his term as governor."

There are uncounted other nasties as well. Religious. Social. Political. Republicans have gathered a particularly large amount of information concerned with Carter's stormy relations with the Georgia legislature in 1971-74. "We have concentrated on the years of his public life," the Republican official says, "but we have also gone back to his Navy days and before. I've only seen a small part of the data, but even that has been, well, very revealing."

Revealing, perhaps. But of whom? Four years after Richard Nixon's Committee to Re-Elect the President cut itself a special path in the political subterranean, imaginative GOP officers are again showing themselves to be somewhat like rotten fish by moonlight: they shine, but they stink. Accentuating the negative is politics at its worse. Subtle hints of an opponent's evil is moral mugging. Organizing a task force to fashion character assassinations is, at this point in time, a slap at public tolerance.

It should be noted that Republicans deny any impropriety, and where have we heard this before, on the grounds that attacking the enemy is a traditional election year tactic. Committee officers say no smears are intended, merely well researched facts "to which the public is entitled." For instance: if the Republicans have discovered (as they say they have) that Carter's family has mistreated some of its farmhands, "We think this is an indication of the man, and we think people should know about it now rather than later."

That premise is admittedly unassailable. The screening of office seekers must necessarily include personality and character scrutiny. But a task force for such? A herd of partisan detectives? There is little in the way of public protection that can come from organized fault finding, particularly when it is biased. Muckraking can be an honorable service; politicized, however, it fills with maggots.

"Hi, there, farmer, what do you think of J. Carter?"

"Well, bub, I don't like him."

"Okay. Mind if we tape record this for the public good?"

Watergate lives. The Republican National Committee still has soiled hands. Note to the Carter campaign: watch your file cabinets.

The way we see it

The Olympics is not for politics...

The pageantry of the opening ceremony culminated by the lighting of the Olympic flame.

The unashamed patriotism of bemedaled athletes watching their nations' flag rise to the sky.

The drama of competition.

The spectacle of a 14-year-old Rumanian turning in a perfect score in gymnastics or the famous Alexeev lifting 562 pounds into the air or a U.S. swimmer setting new records to capture a disc of gold.

The Montreal Olympic games, which closed yesterday, had their moments of glory.

But what may be remembered in future years is the political-turmoil and controversy that has marked these games as the slaughter of Israeli athletes overshadowed the Munich Olympics in 1972.

The Canadian government managed to embroil the Olympics in politics by refusing to allow athletes from Taiwan to compete under the name and flag of the Republic of China. The Canadian government, which recognizes mainland China but does not have diplomatic relations with Taiwan, later agreed to allow Taiwan to use its own flag and national anthem but insisted it call its team Taiwan rather than China.

The 42-member Taiwan team called that offer an insult and went home.

The political furor continued with black African nations calling for the ouster of the New Zealand team from the Olympics because New Zealand's all black rugby union football team toured South Africa, a country which practices apartheid. The International Olympic committee refused to ban New Zealand, and 29 African and Arab nations teams were ordered home by their governments.

The International Olympic committee bitterly blasted the Canadian government for reneging on its promise not to interfere with the games. Officials said the games would have been cancelled if the Taiwan issue had come up earlier.

That incident and the boycotting have led to speculation that the Olympics may never have a chance to get off the ground four years from now in Moscow, despite assurances by the Soviet Union that they will prevent political interference in the 1980 games.

The Olympic Committee should consider implementing stiff penalties for countries that choose to use the games for self-serving interests. Host countries should know what is required of them and the consequences of any violation of policy.

In the aftermath of the African-Arab pullout, Bill Exum, manager of the United States track and field team, said the subject was raised among American black athletes of whether to support the dissenters. The team, he said, unanimously agreed they were at the Olympics to run and jump and throw and not to make political statements.

It is a shame some governments saw their athletes as little more than political pawns.

The motto of the Olympics is "citium, altium, fortium" — swifter, higher, stronger. It is an international forum for the best amateur athletes in the world, not for policital axe grinding.

If the Olympics is to succeed there must be a rededication by all participating countries to its original purpose.

...It's for the athletes who have toiled so long

The close of the Olympic Games also is a time to pay tribute to the winning athletes on the American team. Really all of the members of the team are winners, because to make the trip to Montreal they had to be the best this nation has.

But extra praise must be offered for the American medalists who beat the best competitors the world has to offer.

The men's basketball and swimming teams dominated their events. The boxers proved to be outstanding.

The women's team also provided some exciting moments at the games. They won medals in swimming, basketball and several other sports.

American marksmen, wrestlers and riders have proved to be the best in the world.

While this country can take pride at the accomplishments of its own teams, there also is a feeling of satisfaction for athletes from other nations who have trained extensively in this country and gone on to win medals at the games.

Sometimes the true spirit of the competition and sport is lost in the political events which swirl around the stadiums and pools, but the efforts of the athletes who have worked so hard to win both for themselves and for this country should be remembered above all else.

U.S. needs improved women's sports programs

While the American Olympic team, as a whole, did well in Canada, one group still lagging behind the rest of the world was America's women.

The women were not to blame; they gave their best. The problem lies in the development of women athletes in this country.

Some countries are developing young women into future Olympic stars; the U.S. is still struggling with stereotypes. Some U.S. communities already have taken the first steps in giving girls and boys equal treatment when it comes to sports, but that is the exception rather than the rule. The myth that girls cannot be total athletes like boys still afflicts our society.

Title IX of the Education Amendments Act is one solution to the problem of giving women equal treatment in sports. The act states that schools receiving federal monies must not discriminate against women in their athletic programs. Since there are few schools that in some way do not receive such funds, it is clear that schools now must change their approach to athletics.

This program, while necessary, will take time to have an effect, and it may not have much of an impact on our showing in Moscow in 1980. Along with equal opportunity in education, we must work to improve the level of coaching and training available to American women athletes.

Olympics: a hotbed of swirling controversy

What are the Olympics coming to? It is my belief that lately they have been feeding grounds for international controversy.

Not only is there a question to compete but also a question of judging. Never before in the history of the Olympic games has a perfect score been awarded. Nadia Comaneci was awarded six perfect scores and Nelli Kim one. On another occasion Olga Korbut was competing in the woman's individual gymnastic competition, after finishing a brilliant performance on the balance beam possibly a 10.0 she received an undeserved 9.50. But perhaps the saddest thing of the Olympics is the Governmental leaders of the withdrawing countries. Thinking only of their countries, they withdrew athletes who have trained literally all of their lives. It's really a shame that people who don't even know what victory or defeat is control the athletes that represent their country.

As the Prospect Heights Woman's Club comes to the close of its 20th year of federated club work, it seems fitting that again we thank Paddock Publications for its assistance in bringing to its readers the many attributes of our club.

We are proud of our accomplishments and pledge to continue with our current theme, "Community Concern - Community Service" in cooperation with the newly elected officials of our "City of the Bi-Centennial."

As incoming president for the second time in 10 years, I have watched a group of people concerned, not only with their personal future, but also the future of the area they live in, work together for the good of all.

A wolf in Republican Committee clothing?

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter is about to find out that his first 18 months for presidential politics were the easiest. All he has had to do so far was weather a Democratic fusillade against his accent, his ideas, his birthplace and his religion. Now comes the real fight, with the meanest, roughest, most conniving and shameless assault force in politics: the Republicans.

It's no telling if Carter is ready, but the GOP is. For months a team of sewer-stepping young people from the Republican National Committee has been searching under every rock in Georgia for Carter dirt. The task force, reminiscent of the Republican organizations which institutionalized Watergate, has compiled a roomful of anti-Carter information which in weeks to come will be released to the public through leaks, whispers and official indignations.

The material is said to be largely an accumulation of alleged contradictions in Carter's statements and activities. For example, the task force gleefully notes that Carter, who crows about morality in government, was so friendly with Spiro Agnew that in 1973 he personally urged the former vice president to stay in office despite of corruption against him. This story is not new, Carter having admitted it on several occasions. But drawn up in documented form, Republicans feel it might negatively impress the voters.

Aside from this small caliber ammunition, the RNC snoopers have reportedly uncovered what in essence are smoking guns. Details are secret, subsidies for his peanut farm operation. The Republican says the taxpayer cash has been substantial and wonders aloud "if it's not just possible Jimmy has become a millionaire the easy way." And he adds: "His business may have also propsered by his term as governor."

There are uncounted other nasties as well. Religious. Social. Political. Republicans have gathered a particularly large amount of information concerned with Carter's stormy relations with the Georgia legislature in 1971-74. "We have concentrated on the years of his public life," the Republican official says, "but we have also gone back to his Navy days and before. I've only seen a small part of the data, but even that has been, well, very revealing."

Revealing, perhaps. But of whom? Four years after Richard Nixon's Committee to Re-Elect the President cut itself a special path in the political subterranean, imaginative GOP officers are again showing themselves to be somewhat like rotten fish by moonlight: they shine, but they stink. Accentuating the negative is politics at its worse. Subtle hints of an opponent's evil is moral mugging. Organizing a task force to fashion character assassinations is, at this point in time, a slap at public tolerance.

It should be noted that Republicans deny any impropriety, and where have we heard this before, on the grounds that attacking the enemy is a traditional election year tactic. Committee officers say no smears are intended, merely well researched facts "to which the public is entitled." For instance: if the Republicans have discovered (as they say they have) that Carter's family has mistreated some of its farmhands, "We think this is an indication of the man, and we think people should know about it now rather than later."

That premise is admittedly unassailable. The screening of office seekers must necessarily include personality and character scrutiny. But a task force for such? A herd of partisan detectives? There is little in the way of public protection that can come from organized fault finding, particularly when it is biased. Muckraking can be an honorable service; politicized, however, it fills with maggots.

"Hi, there, farmer, what do you think of J. Carter?"

"Well, bub, I don't like him."

"Okay. Mind if we tape record this for the public good?"

Watergate lives. The Republican National Committee still has soiled hands. Note to the Carter campaign: watch your file cabinets.

The way we see it

The Olympics is not for politics...

The pageantry of the opening ceremony culminated by the lighting of the Olympic flame.

The unashamed patriotism of bemedaled athletes watching their nations' flag rise to the sky.

The drama of competition.

The spectacle of a 14-year-old Rumanian turning in a perfect score in gymnastics or the famous Alexeev lifting 562 pounds into the air or a U.S. swimmer setting new records to capture a disc of gold.

The Montreal Olympic games, which closed yesterday, had their moments of glory.

But what may be remembered in future years is the political-turmoil and controversy that has marked these games as the slaughter of Israeli athletes overshadowed the Munich Olympics in 1972.

The Canadian government managed to embroil the Olympics in politics by refusing to allow athletes from Taiwan to compete under the name and flag of the Republic of China. The Canadian government, which recognizes mainland China but does not have diplomatic relations with Taiwan, later agreed to allow Taiwan to use its own flag and national anthem but insisted it call its team Taiwan rather than China.

The 42-member Taiwan team called that offer an insult and went home.

The political furor continued with black African nations calling for the ouster of the New Zealand team from the Olympics because New Zealand's all black rugby union football team toured South Africa, a country which practices apartheid. The International Olympic committee refused to ban New Zealand, and 29 African and Arab nations teams were ordered home by their governments.

The International Olympic committee bitterly blasted the Canadian government for reneging on its promise not to interfere with the games. Officials said the games would have been cancelled if the Taiwan issue had come up earlier.

That incident and the boycotting have led to speculation that the Olympics may never have a chance to get off the ground four years from now in Moscow, despite assurances by the Soviet Union that they will prevent political interference in the 1980 games.

The Olympic Committee should consider implementing stiff penalties for countries that choose to use the games for self-serving interests. Host countries should know what is required of them and the consequences of any violation of policy.

In the aftermath of the African-Arab pullout, Bill Exum, manager of the United States track and field team, said the subject was raised among American black athletes of whether to support the dissenters. The team, he said, unanimously agreed they were at the Olympics to run and jump and throw and not to make political statements.

It is a shame some governments saw their athletes as little more than political pawns.

The motto of the Olympics is "citium, altium, fortium" — swifter, higher, stronger. It is an international forum for the best amateur athletes in the world, not for policital axe grinding.

If the Olympics is to succeed there must be a rededication by all participating countries to its original purpose.

...It's for the athletes who have toiled so long

The close of the Olympic Games also is a time to pay tribute to the winning athletes on the American team. Really all of the members of the team are winners, because to make the trip to Montreal they had to be the best this nation has.

But extra praise must be offered for the American medalists who beat the best competitors the world has to offer.

The men's basketball and swimming teams dominated their events. The boxers proved to be outstanding.

The women's team also provided some exciting moments at the games. They won medals in swimming, basketball and several other sports.

American marksmen, wrestlers and riders have proved to be the best in the world.

While this country can take pride at the accomplishments of its own teams, there also is a feeling of satisfaction for athletes from other nations who have trained extensively in this country and gone on to win medals at the games.

Sometimes the true spirit of the competition and sport is lost in the political events which swirl around the stadiums and pools, but the efforts of the athletes who have worked so hard to win both for themselves and for this country should be remembered above all else.

U.S. needs improved women's sports programs

While the American Olympic team, as a whole, did well in Canada, one group still lagging behind the rest of the world was America's women.

The women were not to blame; they gave their best. The problem lies in the development of women athletes in this country.

Some countries are developing young women into future Olympic stars; the U.S. is still struggling with stereotypes. Some U.S. communities already have taken the first steps in giving girls and boys equal treatment when it comes to sports, but that is the exception rather than the rule. The myth that girls cannot be total athletes like boys still afflicts our society.

Title IX of the Education Amendments Act is one solution to the problem of giving women equal treatment in sports. The act states that schools receiving federal monies must not discriminate against women in their athletic programs. Since there are few schools that in some way do not receive such funds, it is clear that schools now must change their approach to athletics.

This program, while necessary, will take time to have an effect, and it may not have much of an impact on our showing in Moscow in 1980. Along with equal opportunity in education, we must work to improve the level of coaching and training available to American women athletes.

Buy vs. rent — needs dictate move

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

Dear Mr. Rosefsky: You've confused me. I've saved a number of your columns for future reference, but now a situation has arisen where I need specific advice. We're planning on buying a house, and I dug through my files to see what you had to say on the subject.

In one older column you pointed out the advantages of homeownership. Then, in a more recent column, you seemed to lean heavily toward renting as opposed to owning. Have you changed your mind? Or have circumstances changed that much? Or are you just playing both sides of the fence?

What is your current view on the question?

I don't doubt that I illustrated the advantages of both owning and renting. For indeed there are advantages on both sides, just as there are disadvantages.

But I didn't mean to appear to be playing both sides. The point to understand is that, for certain families (or individuals), renting has more advantages than owning and vice versa. A sound decision has to be based on your own individual circumstances, your needs, your desires. There is no absolute answer that suits every family.

Generally speaking, the younger family that has not fully settled into its ways may find renting more attractive. Renting allows more of a freedom of action: you can move on when your lease is up without any hindrance, and you haven't tied up a lot of your money in nonearning down payment on a house. If the direction or location of your career is uncertain, or if the size of your family is uncertain, renting allows you a flexibility that can be of great value, psychologically as well as financially.

WHEN A FAMILY feels that its future course is relatively settled, owning a house begins to make more sense. Roots grow more securely when they're planted in the stability of your own house — and that goes not just for children but for careers and adult activity within the community.

Once your deliberations have taken these personal needs into account, you can look more objectively at the financial pros and cons: the equity buildup vs. the loss of use of your down payment money; the chance of a profit on the sale of a house vs. the risk of a loss; the tax advantages in homeownership vs. the added costs of homeownership and so forth.

THERE IS ANOTHER influence that anyone should be aware of in making a buy vs. rent decision: often we can be motivated to make a choice based not on our own personal preferences but on what we think others think we should be doing.

"Everyone thinks we should buy a house in such-and-such a neighborhood" or "Everyone thinks we should rent an apartment in such-and-such a building." You really have to worry most about pleasing yourself, not others. Yet many succumb to these outside influences, and later regret it, though they may not be sure just why.

Foreign, U.S. cars mirror styles

by EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

Detroit (UPI) — It used to be easy to tell the difference between a spartan foreign model and even the smallest American car.

And a chrome-laden luxury chariot from Detroit was easily distinguished from its expensive European counterparts.

The energy crisis and an exploding world market have blended those differences.

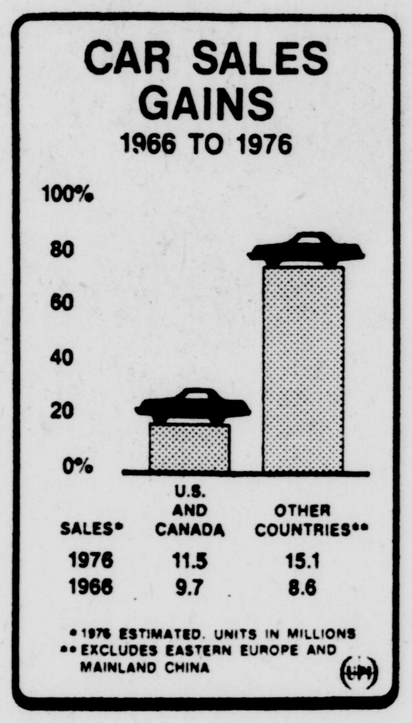

Without looking at the nameplate, there are few motorists who can pick out the European Volkswagen Golf from its U.S. version, the Rabbit. And Ford's soon-to-be-introduced mini Fiesta not only looks like the Rabbit, but will be a multi-continent car.

TWENTY YEARS AGO, American and European cars were distinct in size and concept and the Asian auto industry was relatively underdeveloped.

The automotive market has been on a long-term upward movement in the United States and Canada. But since the mid-1960s, worldwide car sales growth has far outstripped the U.S. and Canadian prace.

Auto sales in the United States and Canada increased from 9.7 million cars in 1966 to an estimated 11.5 million this year, a jump of less than 20 per cent. In the same decade, sales in other world markets have increased almost 80 per cent from 8.6 million cars in 1966 to an estimated 15.1 million this year.

"The European buyer wants the same things the U.S. buyer wants — as stylish, dependable and useful a car as his budget allows," said Philip Caldwell, executive vice president for international automotive operations at the Ford Motor Co. "But the high cost of fuel, generally shorter distances traveled and fewer freeways tend to move the European buyer into smaller cars," he said.

THE NORTH American car market jumped almost 20 per cent in the past decade, compared to a nearly 80 per cent boost in worldwide sales.

PREPARING WEATHER briefs for hundreds of private airplane pilots each day keeps Jim Szajkovics busy at the FAA's Flight Service Station at DuPage County Airport, West Chicago. The station is the third busiest in the nation.

utes," he said.

SZAJKOVICS believes he can talk to pilots without worry because he is a licensed pilot himself.

"With the help of the G.I. Bill, I was able to obtain all of the pilots' ratings, but I honestly don't have the opportunity to fly that I would like," he said.

Szajkovics says more than half the local weather briefers are pilots, or at least very interested in aviation. "But, then again, some of the people here were postal inspectors and some of the girls had been secretaries," he said.

Szajkovics has been briefing for three years. Before that he worked in labor relations with a large corporation, an experience he believes was excellent training for his present job in that he "worked with people."

Eventually he hopes to qualify as an FAA airplane inspector.

"AS WITH OTHER federal government jobs, the promotion process is handled through bidding for jobs higher up the ranks and usually that involves moving to another city and not all of us want to do that," he said.

However, the FAA never promotes briefers to supervisor of the flight service station at which they have worked, though Szajkovics says briefers often go on to FAA tower control posts at DuPage or Pal-Waukee airports.

Szajkovics' ebullient personality recently has added another dimension to his job. In the past few months he has been speaking to clubs and civic groups and is often asked to conduct tours of the Flight Service Station.

"We encourage anyone to come out here to DuPage County Airport for a look at our flight service station. All we ask is that if you are bringing a large group, let us know in advance," he suggests.

Tours may be arranged by calling the Flight Service Station, 584-5010.

One Act Play entitled

"Saga of the Upholstered Board"

Scene: Office of the Sales Manager of a major mattress manufacturing company.

Sales Manager: What is this terrific new idea of yours?

Product Engineer: It's a new mattress with a board in the middle. It makes the mattress harder than — I mean it makes it very hard.

Sales Manager: Sounds good. We could call it the "Board-O-Pedic." The public wants hard mattresses today. We've been spending enough money telling them this for the last ten years.

Product Engineer: We do use a little foam padding, but with the board in the middle, you hardly feel the padding.

Sales Manager: Have you tried it yourself:

Product Engineer: Sure! I used it for three nights and it almost killed me. I hardly slept a wink. But it's harder than any of our competitors are making so it should sell.

Sales Manager: Maybe we should call it the "Upholstered Board?"

Product Manager: I don't know — there's a little company called Schaumburg Mattress Factory that makes fun of these hard mattresses. They tell their customers they shouldn't sleep on these "Upholstered Boards."

Sales Manager: How do you know so much about the Schaumburg Mattress Factory?

Product Engineer: That's where I bought my mattress and man, is it comfortable!!!

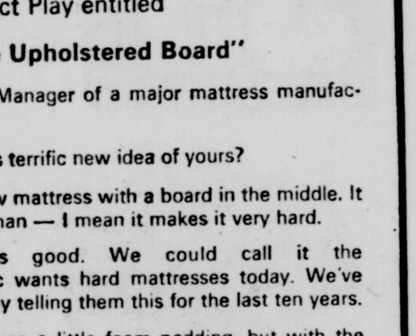

Exit: Product Engineer.

Sometimes a kid needs a parent besides his own

by BONITA BRODT
(First of two parts)

Tom needed a place to stay.

He couldn't remain at home any longer — but then, it had never really been a home. His mother, a heavy drinker, thought more of her social life than of her teen-aged son. His father had not stepped in the house since Tom was three.

Tom grew up in the Northwest suburbs — all of his friends were here. But when he needed a place in this area to stay, no one could help him.

There weren't enough foster parents to go around.

TOM (NOT HIS real name) illustrates a problem familiar to those local agencies who provide foster care. Tom had no relatives who could house him, so his alternative was foster care. But he had to be placed in a foster home far from this area, away from his community and friends, because there wasn't a foster family available here when he needed one.

Basically, there are only two localized agencies that sponsor foster care programs in the Northwest suburbs. Each desperately needs more persons to be foster parents.

Shelter Inc., in Hoffman Estates, currently has only 13 foster parents in its program and Omni-House in Wheeling has only eight foster parents.

The state Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) also has about 100 foster families in the Northwest suburban area, but even that agency needs more families.

EACH FOSTER program allows both married and single persons to be foster parents. And each agency functions with a different goal in mind.

The Shelter Inc. foster program is geared for the adolescent child who needs emergency foster home placement. These are temporary homes, with a maximum stay of 40 days.

All children placed by Shelter must come from the Northwest suburbs. In Shelter's year and a half in operation, the agency has placed more than 80 children, with 42 children placed into foster care so far this year.

"We take the kids who need to be placed into a foster situation right now, not tomorrow or next week," said Allen Yasgur, executive director of Shelter Inc. "Basically, these kids are having problems in their families. They need a place to go — a psychological cooling off period — so they can think things over," he said.

"BUT WE CAN'T take every child who is brought to our attention — there just isn't room," Yasgur said. "We have to turn them away and refer them to other agencies. There is a real need around here for more foster parents — especially for adolescent males," he said.

Shelter foster parents operate on a voluntary basis, meaning they receive no monetary reimbursement for their services.

To assist parents with the added expense of a foster child, Shelter sponsors a charity fair each year to raise money for miscellaneous expenses. This year the group raised $600 for that purpose.

After the Shelter foster home placement, most children either go home, go to long-term foster homes or to group homes, Yasgur said.

THE OMNI-HOUSE foster program aims specifically to help an older youth, age 16-18, to make a meaningful transition into independent living.

In this program, the older youth are placed with a young adult of their same sex. This type of placement weaves a big brother/sister type of approach into a foster situation.

"We have a specialized program to meet the needs of older adolescents who absolutely have no hope of going back to their family and are beyond the age of adoption. These kids usually have a long history of foster placements," said Peter Digre, executive director of Omni-House.

"We place the youth with a person close to his own age who commonly works in the community. Here, the foster parent also provides the youth with a basic skill that will be needed when the youth lives independently, such as how to sign a lease, or how to budget for food," Digre said.

FOSTER PARENTS in the Omni-House program are reimbursed $200 per month for their services. A youth usually remains in an Omni-House placement for about six months, then moves into independent living, a work situation or college, Digre said.

Omni-House has operated for about a year, placing about 11 youths in that time. But the agency hasn't had room for all youths who need placement.

"We have about two times as many kids as there are places to put them," Digre said.

"If we can't help them, then they continue to live in group homes or in regular foster situations. But these kids need a friend, not mom and dad," Digre said. "Too many can't get the specialized care we could give them simply because we don't have enough foster parents," he said.

SCREENING FOR foster parents with both the Shelter and Omni-House programs is both a personal and selective process. These two agencies find it very important to have extensive personal contacts with a prospective foster parent. This is easier done by these agencies because they are localized.

Persons from both agencies will make several visits to the prospective foster home after the initial screening. The agency will interview foster parents both together and apart. They also will talk with children to discover how a child might react to another brother or sister.

Special things both agencies look for when screening prospective foster parents include financial and emotional stability and also personal reasons for wanting a foster child. All foster parents must be licensed by the state.

But not everyone who applies for a foster parent license receives one.

WANDA LAVELY, a DCFS licensing supervisor, explained what persons might be refused a state foster care license.

"There are families who might choose foster care because they are looking for a child to save their marriage. Others might simply want a playmate for their own children," she said.

"Most of these difficulties are discovered when a social agency screens a prospective foster parent, but inevitably, we can't spot all the problems," she said.

Sometimes, the agency cannot anticipate what strains will develop from a foster parent-child relationship.

"Many parents come into foster care with the misconception that a foster child is an orphan on their doorstep, and that's just not true. Most of our children in foster care come with problems that have to be dealt with, and that's the hard part," she said.

FOSTER CARE can be a lot of giving, and not much getting. "And that is disappointing for many parents who want a child to openly appreciate the care a parent is giving them. There can be tremendous disappointments in foster care, and the parents have to be the kind of people who can handle them," Ms. Lavely said.

Like the Shelter and Omni-House foster programs, DCFS also emphasizes the need for keeping a child in his or her own neighborhood when placed in a foster home. But even with 100 foster parents for the North

The Ramon Rubios

Their door's always open

by BONITA BRODT

The Rubios are known as "the family who never says no."

That's the reputation that four years of voluntary foster parenting through the Shelter Inc. program has tagged for them. The Rubios make themselves available whenever help is needed, never reluctant to open their home up to a foster child.

Ramon and Anita Rubio have welcomed more than 16 foster children into their Mount Prospect home, most of them teenagers. The Rubios say they have never been happy to see any one of them leave.

"We've never had what you might call a bad experience with any foster child," Ramon says. "We've learned a little about ourselves and our own children from each child who has come into our home. There are difficult times, of course, but you learn to work those out," he says.

THE BRIGHT-EYED Rubio children — Margarita, 9, and Dennis, 6 — both are enthusiastic about having foster children around. Both talk animatedly about things they have done with the foster children, whether it be riding a horse or calling them on the phone after the child has left the Rubio home.

"We have never had any kind of sibling rivalry between our kids and a foster child," Anita says. "Margarita and Dennis look forward to the foster children; they ask when we will get another one when one leaves."

Why did the Rubios decide to be foster parents?

"That is a question we are asked all the time," Anita said. "Some of our friends say, 'you must be crazy — how can you trust them?' but they don't understand."

"RAMON AND I love children. If it were up to me, I would have dozens of them. We thought of both adoption and foster care. But with adoption you can have only one child. So, we decided that the best way to bring the most children into our lives was through foster care."

The foster child in the Rubio home must obey a few basic rules. Essentially, they are the same rules that pertain to their own children: no smoking in the house, no stealing and no lying.

The Rubios' foster children must also abide by the flexible specifics of a behavioral contract, which is signed by the foster parent, the child and a Shelter Inc. social worker. This contract allows a child to know what to expect in the foster situation from the beginning of a placement.

"We tack the contract up on the refrigerator," Anita says. "That way it is always in plain view — the child can't say they forgot about something because it's right there to remind them. It's important to let the foster child know what you expect from them right from the beginning, that way they can't do something we might not approve of, then later tell us that we didn't warn them about it."

ALSO ON THE refrigerator is a list of chores for each person in the Rubio family to complete.

The Rubios believe it is very important to let a foster child know just how long they will stay in their home.

"Sometimes this is difficult because even we don't know how long a child will be here, but we are honest with them from the beginning. We tell them that they are welcome here as long as they need to stay," Ramon says.

The foster child living with the Rubios has to be a part of the family, Ramon and Anita agree.

"Most of these children come from bad families — the kids never knew the satisfaction of a good home life," Ramon says.

"THE CHILDREN who stay here must be a part of our family. They must share responsibility, take part in family activities and most of all share

Fall slacks will be straight cut and minus cuffs

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I purchased some slacks at the end of the season that I intend to wear early this fall. The pants must be shortened and they are cuffed. This is quite a job for someone who doesn't do much sewing. Before I begin, please tell me if the pants for fall will have cuffs or not. It would be much simpler to shorten the pants without bothering with the cuffs. — Merry R.

Dear Merry,

Most of the pants I have seen for fall will be straight cut, without cuffs — there will always be some variations however. In your case, feel confident to shorten the pants and eliminate the cuffs. Be sure to make the back of the pants slightly longer than the front. They look so much nicer on you.

Also, as I have stated before, be sure the pants have been pre-shrunk before you permanently hem them. They usually shrink some the first time they are laundered and also the first time they are dry-cleaned.

Now is the time to go through your closets and eliminate the garments you know you won't be wearing this season. A good rule of thumb is one I personally use; if I haven't worn a garment twice the last season, I probably won't wear it at all this season — so clean your closets and begin with a fresh start.

This is going to be a season of coordinated wardrobes, so begin planning for fall now. Find out where you can add part of a garment, such as a vest, skirt, pants or whatever, plus the type of coat or wrap you will need.

It's not too early to begin checking on fabrics now. Some fabrics, including most wools, will be in short supply this winter, so allow yourself plenty of time.

Dear Eunice Farmer:

Will you please give me some information on how to remodel dresses and blouses that I buy? It seems that they are all too wide at the shoulder. Should I just trim both the sleeve and the shoulder off about one inch? I have tried putting tucks in the front but don't find this too flattering. My problem is that I have to buy a pattern that is actually too large for me in order to accommodate my large hips. — Mrs. W.R.R.

Dear Mrs. W.R.R.,

Never change the shape of the cap of your sleeves unless you are re-cutting them for fashion reasons. The fitting in your case involves the shoulder width only. If this is corrected the sleeves will fit perfectly.

Examine your garment carefully to see exactly how much the shoulder seam needs to be shortened. Then, try to follow the original curve of the armhole and cut off some of the width of the armhole, tapering to nothing where the armhole begins to curve into the underarm area.

Re-stitch the sleeve carefully. It should fit properly. It's always better to baste the sleeve in place before stitching. This will assure the fit. Never cut off too much — it's better to trim twice if necessary.

Sew simple
by Eunice Farmer

Dear Mrs. G. H.,

My reason for writing to you is to inquire and perhaps get some action on the subject of zippers in commercial garments, mainly in nylon and polyester turtle necks, When they are laundered, the zipper ALWAYS seems to pucker. Don't the manufacturers pre-shrink zippers as you have taught us to do? —Mrs. G.H.

You have answered your own question. Zippers should be pressed with a warm iron and damp cloth after they are laundered and also while they are being sewn in the garment. Be sure to press the zipper from the wrong side of the garment and not directly on the zipper tape. Also, be sure to press the zipper before the seam allowances are pressed open.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Please tell me how to remove the shine from my dress pants. I have tried sponging with vinegar and water, but it doesn't help. — Mrs. J.

Dear Mrs. J.,

Shine is caused by the pressing iron coming in contact with the fabric. Sponging with vinegar and water will not remove the shine. Try brushing the shiny area with a fine sandpaper or emery board. Be careful not to damage the fabric.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Please tell me how to make a pattern for a large size. I have a hard time finding patterns that fit me. — Mrs. M.

Dear Mrs. M.,

Most pattern companies have a pattern for large sizes. Check with your local fabric store for the pattern you want.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have been sewing for many years and I find it hard to accept the quality of ready-made garments when you know how simple it is to obtain better quality. There is nothing we can do to help this situation except appreciate your own sewing, buy less and sew more!

Dear Readers,

In response to all of you who have written, begging for information about resources for large size patterns, it has been suggested that you find a store that carries "KWIK-SEW" patterns. These patterns can be used for both woven and knit type fabrics. If any of you have any further information for more resources, please let me know about them so that I may pass them on to our readers.

I love hearing from all of you and although it would be impossible to answer you individually, I will do the best I can in this column. Whenever you can help others and feel you have a good idea, please share it. Jot it down on a post card. I'll use the ones of the most general interest in Sew Simple.

Sometimes a kid needs a parent besides his own

by BONITA BRODT
(First of two parts)

Tom needed a place to stay.

He couldn't remain at home any longer — but then, it had never really been a home. His mother, a heavy drinker, thought more of her social life than of her teen-aged son. His father had not stepped in the house since Tom was three.

Tom grew up in the Northwest suburbs — all of his friends were here. But when he needed a place in this area to stay, no one could help him.

There weren't enough foster parents to go around.

TOM (NOT HIS real name) illustrates a problem familiar to those local agencies who provide foster care. Tom had no relatives who could house him, so his alternative was foster care. But he had to be placed in a foster home far from this area, away from his community and friends, because there wasn't a foster family available here when he needed one.

Basically, there are only two localized agencies that sponsor foster care programs in the Northwest suburbs. Each desperately needs more persons to be foster parents.

Shelter Inc., in Hoffman Estates, currently has only 13 foster parents in its program and Omni-House in Wheeling has only eight foster parents.

The state Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) also has about 100 foster families in the Northwest suburban area, but even that agency needs more families.

EACH FOSTER program allows both married and single persons to be foster parents. And each agency functions with a different goal in mind.

The Shelter Inc. foster program is geared for the adolescent child who needs emergency foster home placement. These are temporary homes, with a maximum stay of 40 days.

All children placed by Shelter must come from the Northwest suburbs. In Shelter's year and a half in operation, the agency has placed more than 80 children, with 42 children placed into foster care so far this year.

"We take the kids who need to be placed into a foster situation right now, not tomorrow or next week," said Allen Yasgur, executive director of Shelter Inc. "Basically, these kids are having problems in their families. They need a place to go — a psychological cooling off period — so they can think things over," he said.

"BUT WE CAN'T take every child who is brought to our attention — there just isn't room," Yasgur said. "We have to turn them away and refer them to other agencies. There is a real need around here for more foster parents — especially for adolescent males," he said.

Shelter foster parents operate on a voluntary basis, meaning they receive no monetary reimbursement for their services.

To assist parents with the added expense of a foster child, Shelter sponsors a charity fair each year to raise money for miscellaneous expenses. This year the group raised $600 for that purpose.

After the Shelter foster home placement, most children either go home, go to long-term foster homes or to group homes, Yasgur said.

THE OMNI-HOUSE foster program aims specifically to help an older youth, age 16-18, to make a meaningful transition into independent living.

In this program, the older youth are placed with a young adult of their same sex. This type of placement weaves a big brother/sister type of approach into a foster situation.

"We have a specialized program to meet the needs of older adolescents who absolutely have no hope of going back to their family and are beyond the age of adoption. These kids usually have a long history of foster placements," said Peter Digre, executive director of Omni-House.

"We place the youth with a person close to his own age who commonly works in the community. Here, the foster parent also provides the youth with a basic skill that will be needed when the youth lives independently, such as how to sign a lease, or how to budget for food," Digre said.

FOSTER PARENTS in the Omni-House program are reimbursed $200 per month for their services. A youth usually remains in an Omni-House placement for about six months, then moves into independent living, a work situation or college, Digre said.

Omni-House has operated for about a year, placing about 11 youths in that time. But the agency hasn't had room for all youths who need placement.

"We have about two times as many kids as there are places to put them," Digre said.

"If we can't help them, then they continue to live in group homes or in regular foster situations. But these kids need a friend, not mom and dad," Digre said. "Too many can't get the specialized care we could give them simply because we don't have enough foster parents," he said.

SCREENING FOR foster parents with both the Shelter and Omni-House programs is both a personal and selective process. These two agencies find it very important to have extensive personal contacts with a prospective foster parent. This is easier done by these agencies because they are localized.

Persons from both agencies will make several visits to the prospective foster home after the initial screening. The agency will interview foster parents both together and apart. They also will talk with children to discover how a child might react to another brother or sister.

Special things both agencies look for when screening prospective foster parents include financial and emotional stability and also personal reasons for wanting a foster child. All foster parents must be licensed by the state.

But not everyone who applies for a foster parent license receives one.

WANDA LAVELY, a DCFS licensing supervisor, explained what persons might be refused a state foster care license.

"There are families who might choose foster care because they are looking for a child to save their marriage. Others might simply want a playmate for their own children," she said.

"Most of these difficulties are discovered when a social agency screens a prospective foster parent, but inevitably, we can't spot all the problems," she said.

Sometimes, the agency cannot anticipate what strains will develop from a foster parent-child relationship.

"Many parents come into foster care with the misconception that a foster child is an orphan on their doorstep, and that's just not true. Most of our children in foster care come with problems that have to be dealt with, and that's the hard part," she said.

FOSTER CARE can be a lot of giving, and not much getting. "And that is disappointing for many parents who want a child to openly appreciate the care a parent is giving them. There can be tremendous disappointments in foster care, and the parents have to be the kind of people who can handle them," Ms. Lavely said.

Like the Shelter and Omni-House foster programs, DCFS also emphasizes the need for keeping a child in his or her own neighborhood when placed in a foster home. But even with 100 foster parents for the North

The Ramon Rubios

Their door's always open

by BONITA BRODT

The Rubios are known as "the family who never says no."

That's the reputation that four years of voluntary foster parenting through the Shelter Inc. program has tagged for them. The Rubios make themselves available whenever help is needed, never reluctant to open their home up to a foster child.

Ramon and Anita Rubio have welcomed more than 16 foster children into their Mount Prospect home, most of them teenagers. The Rubios say they have never been happy to see any one of them leave.

"We've never had what you might call a bad experience with any foster child," Ramon says. "We've learned a little about ourselves and our own children from each child who has come into our home. There are difficult times, of course, but you learn to work those out," he says.

THE BRIGHT-EYED Rubio children — Margarita, 9, and Dennis, 6 — both are enthusiastic about having foster children around. Both talk animatedly about things they have done with the foster children, whether it be riding a horse or calling them on the phone after the child has left the Rubio home.

"We have never had any kind of sibling rivalry between our kids and a foster child," Anita says. "Margarita and Dennis look forward to the foster children; they ask when we will get another one when one leaves."

Why did the Rubios decide to be foster parents?

"That is a question we are asked all the time," Anita said. "Some of our friends say, 'you must be crazy — how can you trust them?' but they don't understand."

"RAMON AND I love children. If it were up to me, I would have dozens of them. We thought of both adoption and foster care. But with adoption you can have only one child. So, we decided that the best way to bring the most children into our lives was through foster care."

The foster child in the Rubio home must obey a few basic rules. Essentially, they are the same rules that pertain to their own children: no smoking in the house, no stealing and no lying.

The Rubios' foster children must also abide by the flexible specifics of a behavioral contract, which is signed by the foster parent, the child and a Shelter Inc. social worker. This contract allows a child to know what to expect in the foster situation from the beginning of a placement.

You have answered your own question and draw up after the garment is laundered is because they have not been pre-shrunk. If you launder your garment in warm instead of hot water, pull the zipper while set. It will help somewhat.

Once again, there is a great advantage to making your own clothes. It's hard to accept the quality of ready-made garments when you know how simple it is to obtain better quality. There is nothing we can do to help this situation except appreciate your own sewing, buy less and sew more!

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Migraine cures may constrict arteries

I am a 34-year-old healthy female, but I suffer with rather frequent attacks of migraine headache. My question regards the use of Caffergot PB for an extended period of time. I have had good results with it for the past two years, obtaining the desired relief with three for four per headache.

I have periods of a week or two without a headache, then two or three weeks with a headache just about every two days. Sometimes this adds up to more than the 10 tablets allowed for one week.

I do experience chest pain when I take them. I presume it is caused from the constriction of the coronary vessels. Am I right? On my physical exams, my heart is okay. But I wonder if the effects of taking Caffergot P B over a long period of time as frequently as I do could cause any kind of damage to the heart or cause a peripheral vascular disease?

Caffergot PB contains ergotamine tartrate and caffeine (the same as caffeine in your coffee). It does cause the tiny muscles in the walls of the arteries to contract, constricting the arteries. That is how it relieves your headache. Migraine headaches cause pain from over dilation of the arteries in the head region and the medicine counteracts this.

One of the complications of ergotamine tartrate is a condition called ergotism. Constriction of the arteries in the legs can lead to gangrene if the condition is not controlled. The pain in your chest could be from constriction of the arteries of your heart. I think your symptoms are important enough that you should discuss them with your doctor. Certainly you should try to stay within the allotted amount of medicine if you want to avoid complications.

There are other medicines you could use. Sansert (meehy-sergide maleate) is often used to prevent headaches in people who have frequent attacks and yours are in that category. This medicine will not abort the attack, but if you can prevent so many attacks, you will need less Caffergot PB.

YOU MAY need to adjust your pattern of living. Psychological factors or a stress-loaded environment or life style is often part of the picture. I'm sending you The Health Letter, number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain, to give you more information on headaches and their management. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

There are a lot of other factors that may be important in precipitating headaches that you can do something about. Alcohol may trigger attacks. Alcohol dilates arteries to some extent and in other ways causes attacks in people who have migraines. Cheese and wine contain a substance called tyramine that will cause attacks. So will monosodium glutamate used in Chinese cooking. Nitrates found in hot dogs and cured meats and phenylethylamine found in chocolate are sometimes offending agents. You should avoid flickering lights which can precipitate an attack.

Although migraine headaches are fairly common, most headaches are not migraines. The successful treatment of headaches first requires identifying the type of headache involved. Your history of relief with Caffergot PB confirms you have migraine headaches, but many people who think they have migraines really have other problems.

Homeowners should be alert to ripoff schemes

Dear Dorothy: Please do your bit and warn people, especially oldsters, that tradesmen who come to their doors offering to spray shrubs, bushes, and so forth, are often fakers. My aunt and uncle just got ripped off so I know.—Carin Goodhue.

It's not the oldsters, as a rule, who need these warnings because they've had the experience. The new householders are the ones who are the customary victims. We got the "business" years ago on the old "red-spider" dodge. The lure was that a neighbor across the road was having it done — a neighbor with beautiful plantings. A few years later we were "taken" by the blacktop ploy, again because others in the area were having it done. It was a thin oil coating, of course. Best counsel is to check the Better Business Bureau. If it's a weekend and the BBB office isn't open, stall, dodge and evade — and if it's a reputable outfit, the wait won't matter. The crooks are the ones who give the rush act about urgency.

Dear Dorothy: Some of my mother's silverware items seem to be losing their silver and others seem perfectly all right. Could she have cleaned the silver wrong or are there various grades of silverplate? —Mrs. Connie Land.

There are several different grades (thicknesses) of silverplate. You can tell by holding them — and, assuredly, by the difference in price.

Country Fair is coming

"Country Fair" time, when Northwest Suburban Christian Women's Club features homecrafts and baked good in a silent auction is Tuesday, Aug. 10, at a 12:30 luncheon at the Arlington Park Hilton.

Music will be provided by a women's trio composed of Miriam Zulker and Rae and Lynne Wingate. Speakers will be Mrs. Marcia Elyea and Mrs. Jan Bierbower.

Proceeds of the auction go toward the free baby-sitting provided for club meetings during the year at Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church.

Reservations for the luncheon and fair should be phoned to 398-7337 or 885-0911.

La Leche to picnic

La Leche League members from Des Plaines and nearby suburbs are sponsoring a picnic for their families at Harms Woods at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Husbands will be honored guests, and each family will contribute to a buffet table.

La Leche League is composed of mothers who want to help new mothers breast feed their babies. Those wishing further information may contact Mrs. Morton Igelman at OR 5-4358.

Everyone in the pool

Northwest Chapter of Hadassah, Chai Group, will hold a pool party at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Stonegate home of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Teich, Buffalo Grove. Donation is $4 per couple; however, there will be no charge for prospective Hadassah members who may call Kayla Earle, 397-0425 for further information.

and Northwest suburban area, that placement is not always possible.

DCFS places children in the Northwest suburbs in four types of foster arrangements: specialized (for emotionally or physically handicapped youth), regular long-term homes, emergency and transitional living placements.

REGULAR FOSTER parents are reimbursed about $100 per month for a smaller child and $150-180 per month for a teenager, said Edna Summers, a DCFS resource worker for the North and Northwest suburban area.

Specialized foster parents receive an additional $100 per month, she said.

Shelter, DCFS and Omni-House emphasize that a foster parent should know about and understand a child's background and problems before entering any foster home situation.

Their door's always open

with one another. Everything that is ours belongs also to the foster child. We want them to appreciate that."

One of the biggest frustrations and rewards in foster care is teaching a child responsibility, Ramon says.

"Most of these children have never learned the word responsibility," Ramon says. "I might remind them to do something around the house, or let them know that they should make a decision about something in their life, and they say, 'well I never had to do this at home.' "

"I never tell them what decision to make, but I sit down and show them the alternatives. We let them know that we care, and that they need to be responsible for themselves. And you know, the child may not appreciate it at first, but after a while they wonder why their family never bothered to care. They learn what it is to be responsible and care for people."

AND THE FOSTER children must appreciate that caring, because most of them keep in touch with the Rubios after they leave the home. Some return occasionally for visits with the family.

"We want the children to share with us, learn with us and most of all, want to be with us," Ramon says. "That is the only way they will learn what a family is. Our foster kids are like our own kids — they go on trips with us and we treat them just like our own. They are welcome in our home as long as they obey the rules, don't do anything to wrongly influence our children — for as long as they want to stay here."

Inevitably, the Rubios have experienced those tense moments when they ask themselves why they took the step toward foster parenting.

"There are several times when things come to a point that I ask myself why I am doing this, and at the particular moment, the answer may not always be a happy one," Anita says.

"But the benefits far outweigh those moments. You make adjustments in your life. We love children and want to help them. We know we are satisfied as foster parents."

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Migraine cures may constrict arteries

I am a 34-year-old healthy female, but I suffer with rather frequent attacks of migraine headache. My question regards the use of Caffergot PB for an extended period of time. I have had good results with it for the past two years, obtaining the desired relief with three for four per headache.

I have periods of a week or two without a headache, then two or three weeks with a headache just about every two days. Sometimes this adds up to more than the 10 tablets allowed for one week.

I do experience chest pain when I take them. I presume it is caused from the constriction of the coronary vessels. Am I right? On my physical exams, my heart is okay. But I wonder if the effects of taking Caffergot P B over a long period of time as frequently as I do could cause any kind of damage to the heart or cause a peripheral vascular disease?

Caffergot PB contains ergotamine tartrate and caffeine (the same as caffeine in your coffee). It does cause the tiny muscles in the walls of the arteries to contract, constricting the arteries. That is how it relieves your headache. Migraine headaches cause pain from over dilation of the arteries in the head region and the medicine counteracts this.

One of the complications of ergotamine tartrate is a condition called ergotism. Constriction of the arteries in the legs can lead to gangrene if the condition is not controlled. The pain in your chest could be from constriction of the arteries of your heart. I think your symptoms are important enough that you should discuss them with your doctor. Certainly you should try to stay within the allotted amount of medicine if you want to avoid complications.

There are other medicines you could use. Sansert (meehy-sergide maleate) is often used to prevent headaches in people who have frequent attacks and yours are in that category. This medicine will not abort the attack, but if you can prevent so many attacks, you will need less Caffergot PB.

YOU MAY need to adjust your pattern of living. Psychological factors or a stress-loaded environment or life style is often part of the picture. I'm sending you The Health Letter, number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain, to give you more information on headaches and their management. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

There are a lot of other factors that may be important in precipitating headaches that you can do something about. Alcohol may trigger attacks. Alcohol dilates arteries to some extent and in other ways causes attacks in people who have migraines. Cheese and wine contain a substance called tyramine that will cause attacks. So will monosodium glutamate used in Chinese cooking. Nitrates found in hot dogs and cured meats and phenylethylamine found in chocolate are sometimes offending agents. You should avoid flickering lights which can precipitate an attack.

Although migraine headaches are fairly common, most headaches are not migraines. The successful treatment of headaches first requires identifying the type of headache involved. Your history of relief with Caffergot PB confirms you have migraine headaches, but many people who think they have migraines really have other problems.

Homeowners should be alert to ripoff schemes

Dear Dorothy: Please do your bit and warn people, especially oldsters, that tradesmen who come to their doors offering to spray shrubs, bushes, and so forth, are often fakers. My aunt and uncle just got ripped off so I know.—Carin Goodhue.

It's not the oldsters, as a rule, who need these warnings because they've had the experience. The new householders are the ones who are the customary victims. We got the "business" years ago on the old "red-spider" dodge. The lure was that a neighbor across the road was having it done — a neighbor with beautiful plantings. A few years later we were "taken" by the blacktop ploy, again because others in the area were having it done. It was a thin oil coating, of course. Best counsel is to check the Better Business Bureau. If it's a weekend and the BBB office isn't open, stall, dodge and evade — and if it's a reputable outfit, the wait won't matter. The crooks are the ones who give the rush act about urgency.

Dear Dorothy: Some of my mother's silverware items seem to be losing their silver and others seem perfectly all right. Could she have cleaned the silver wrong or are there various grades of silverplate? —Mrs. Connie Land.

There are several different grades (thicknesses) of silverplate. You can tell by holding them — and, assuredly, by the difference in price.

Dear Dorothy: Can you tell me what's wrong when sometimes the cake I've baked has a heavy outside crust and yet isn't completely baked in the middle —actually doughy?—Marie Dorkson.

Had your oven checked lately? Kind of thing you describe usually means the oven is too hot.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Country Fair is coming

"Country Fair" time, when Northwest Suburban Christian Women's Club features homecrafts and baked good in a silent auction is Tuesday, Aug. 10, at a 12:30 luncheon at the Arlington Park Hilton.

Music will be provided by a women's trio composed of Miriam Zulker and Rae and Lynne Wingate. Speakers will be Mrs. Marcia Elyea and Mrs. Jan Bierbower.

Proceeds of the auction go toward the free baby-sitting provided for club meetings during the year at Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church.

Reservations for the luncheon and fair should be phoned to 398-7337 or 885-0911.

La Leche to picnic

La Leche League members from Des Plaines and nearby suburbs are sponsoring a picnic for their families at Harms Woods at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Husbands will be honored guests, and each family will contribute to a buffet table.

La Leche League is composed of mothers who want to help new mothers breast feed their babies. Those wishing further information may contact Mrs. Morton Igelman at OR 5-4358.

Everyone in the pool

Northwest Chapter of Hadassah, Chai Group, will hold a pool party at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Stonegate home of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Teich, Buffalo Grove. Donation is $4 per couple; however, there will be no charge for prospective Hadassah members who may call Kayla Earle, 397-0425 for further information.

Happenings

Lunch and theater

Palatine Welcome Wagon will hold its annual lunch and theater outing Tuesday, Aug. 10. After lunching at Old Orchard Country Club the group will see a performance of "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

Cost for both the meal and the show will be $6. Friday is the deadline for reservations which can be made by calling either 359-5597 or 358-6578.

DAR hosts tea

Sarah's Grove Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will host an open house and membership tea at Schaumburg Library Tuesday, Aug. 10, from 1 to 4 p.m. The get-together will acquaint guests with the DAR chapter's activities and members.

Mrs. Frederick Barber of Elmhurst, past state organizing secretary, will explain the genealogy research involved in working on lineage papers and offer assistance to those interested. All DAR members, those needing help in establishing eligibility for DAR membership and any women collecting family data are invited.

Sarah's Grove was the first Illinois chapter organized in this Bicentennial year and will be accepting charter membership through next January.

Mrs. Harold George of Schaumburg, has further information at 894-0178.

Aina Holland chairs YWCA awards group

Aina Holland, Arlington Heights, is chairing a new committee of the Young Women's Christian Association of Metropolitan Chicago's annual Leader Luncheon.

Although this is the fifth consecutive year the "Y" has publicly honored the leadership role of Chicago area women, it will be the first year the group makes an award to the business with the most innovative program for the advancement of women.

Aina Holland

Any business is eligible for the new award. The individual achievement awards are given in seven categories: the arts; business; community leadership, metropolitan and local; communications; education; and professions.

The luncheon will be held Friday, Oct. 1, in the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

and Northwest suburban area, that placement is not always possible.

DCFS places children in the Northwest suburbs in four types of foster arrangements: specialized (for emotionally or physically handicapped youth), regular long-term homes, emergency and transitional living placements.

REGULAR FOSTER parents are reimbursed about $100 per month for a smaller child and $150-180 per month for a teenager, said Edna Summers, a DCFS resource worker for the North and Northwest suburban area.

Specialized foster parents receive an additional $100 per month, she said.

Shelter, DCFS and Omni-House emphasize that a foster parent should know about and understand a child's background and problems before entering any foster home situation.

Their door's always open

with one another. Everything that is ours belongs also to the foster child. We want them to appreciate that."

One of the biggest frustrations and rewards in foster care is teaching a child responsibility, Ramon says.

"Most of these children have never learned the word responsibility," Ramon says. "I might remind them to do something around the house, or let them know that they should make a decision about something in their life, and they say, 'well I never had to do this at home.' "

"I never tell them what decision to make, but I sit down and show them the alternatives. We let them know that we care, and that they need to be responsible for themselves. And you know, the child may not appreciate it at first, but after a while they wonder why their family never bothered to care. They learn what it is to be responsible and care for people."

AND THE FOSTER children must appreciate that caring, because most of them keep in touch with the Rubios after they leave the home. Some return occasionally for visits with the family.

"We want the children to share with us, learn with us and most of all, want to be with us," Ramon says. "That is the only way they will learn what a family is. Our foster kids are like our own kids — they go on trips with us and we treat them just like our own. They are welcome in our home as long as they obey the rules, don't do anything to wrongly influence our children — for as long as they want to stay here."

Inevitably, the Rubios have experienced those tense moments when they ask themselves why they took the step toward foster parenting.

"There are several times when things come to a point that I ask myself why I am doing this, and at the particular moment, the answer may not always be a happy one," Anita says.

"But the benefits far outweigh those moments. You make adjustments in your life. We love children and want to help them. We know we are satisfied as foster parents."

Ask Andy

Glass made of sand, soda, lime

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Doug Wadsworth, 12, of Palatine, Ill., for his question: HOW IS GLASS MADE?

In the United States, glass is made in more than 400 large plants, and there are more than 1,000 smaller companies that cut, shape and decorate the products made by the larger glass manufacturers. More than $2 billion worth of glass products are produced which contribute greatly to our modern way of life. Yet glass is made mainly from inexpensive raw materials — sand, soda and lime.

There are hundreds of thousands of glass products, from windows to eyeglasses, telescope lenses to light bulbs. Glass has countless desirable qualities. It can be made to resist acid and electricity; it is tough, durable, flexible and can transmit light. Since the turn of the century, numerous types of glass with special characteristics have been invented, such as tempered safety glass, fiberglass heat-resistant glass and radiation-absorbing and radiation-transmitting glass.

Naturally, with so many different kinds of glass, the way each is made varies tremendously. But let's take a look at the basic process at a glass factory. Here your amazed eyes behold huge bins, or silos, which hold the raw materials for glassmaking — sand, soda ash, limestone and borax. All dry materials, these powders look very similar, but varying proportions produce greatly different results.

Gigantic furnaces called continuous tanks are used to make the glass. These are the largest of the melting furnaces, and while many of them can hold 50 to 100 tons of molten glass, the really big ones hold 1,000 tons. When the fire is lit in one of these gigantic furnaces, it stays lit until the brick walls of the furnace begin to wear out — a period of time that can span five years.

In the continuous tank the raw materials are mixed together along with waste glass, of the same kind, from a previous melt. The temperature soars upward to almost 2,700 degrees F., and the solid raw materials melt together into a hot, syrupy mass of molten glass. From the continuous tank the mass flows into a refining chamber where tiny bubbles are removed.

The molten glass that comes from the furnace must be cooled slowly, and this is done in an annealing lehr — a special oven used just for this purpose. If the glass is allowed to cool too rapidly flaws may develop that could cause distortions or even crack the glass. As the long ribbons of sheet glass come out of the annealing lehr they are inspected, cut and polished to give them a smooth surface.

Most glass containers are shaped in molds as soon as the glass comes from the refining chamber. This has to be done before the temperature of the glass cools down and while it is still workable. Different methods are used for making different types of containers.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Carol Hedrich, 11, of Lexington, N.C., for her question: HOW MANY BIRDS CAN A MOCKINGBIRD IMITATE?

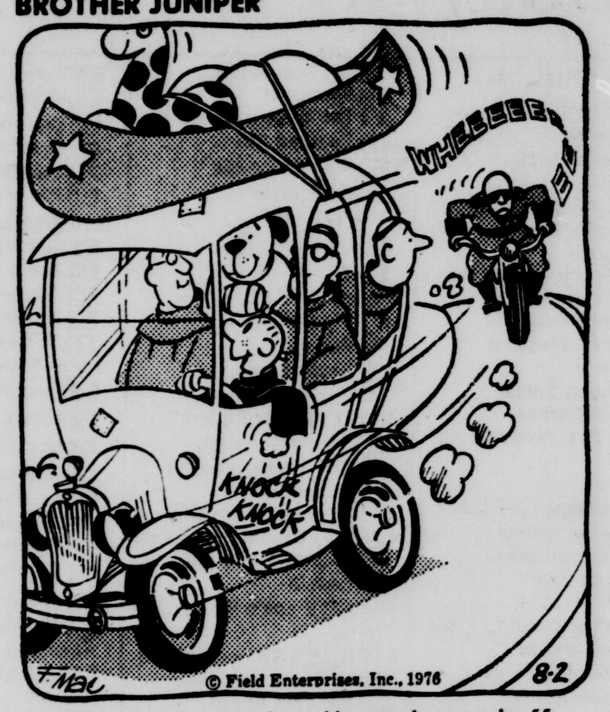

The mockingbird is a handsome, slender fellow native only to North, Central and South America. In the United States he is very common in the Southern states. And just about every time you see him you will also hear him singing. His own personal song is a medley of rich, melodious notes, but this does not seem to be enough for him. He borrows songs from his neighbors and has been known to sound like anything from a squeaky wheel to a barking dog. People who know birds have credited him with the ability to imitate at least 32 of his feathered friends.

The mockingbird is not the only song-stealer in the bird world. Among some of the other mimics in the United States are the catbird, brown thrasher and starling. Australia also has its share of mimics. The lyre bird, a relative of our crow, imitates not only other birds but also the voices of people, auto horns and the rustling of parrot wings.

Expert goes for sure thing

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Oswald: "As we have tried to point out so many times a large part of the difference between bad play, good play and expert play lies in the planning at trick one."

Jim: "Six hearts certainly is a good contract. You have eleven tricks and can get an easy twelfth by a successful finesse for the king of spades."

Oswald: "A good player sees an extra chance. He can discard his low club on the king of diamonds and ruff a club. Then, if clubs break 3-3 dummy's fourth club becomes his twelfth trick."

Jim: "You can see that clubs don't break and that the spade finesse is going to lose. Nevertheless, the expert has no trouble with the hand."

Oswald: "He simply draws trumps, cashes his king then dummy's ace of clubs, discards his last club on dummy's king of diamonds and ruffs a third club. East shows out but our expert isn't bothered. He gets back to dummy with a third trump, leads the last club and discards his three of spades. West wins, but has to give South his twelfth trick with a ruff and a discard or by leading a spade into South's ace-queen."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Oswald: "As we have tried to point out so many times a large part of the difference between bad play, good play and expert play lies in the planning at trick one."

Jim: "Six hearts certainly is a good contract. You have eleven tricks and can get an easy twelfth by a successful finesse for the king of spades."

Oswald: "A good player sees an extra chance. He can discard his low club on the king of diamonds and ruff a club. Then, if clubs break 3-3 dummy's fourth club becomes his twelfth trick."

Jim: "You can see that clubs don't break and that the spade finesse is going to lose. Nevertheless, the expert has no trouble with the hand."

Oswald: "He simply draws trumps, cashes his king then dummy's ace of clubs, discards his last club on dummy's king of diamonds and ruffs a third club. East shows out but our expert isn't bothered. He gets back to dummy with a third trump, leads the last club and discards his three of spades. West wins, but has to give South his twelfth trick with a ruff and a discard or by leading a spade into South's ace-queen."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D I L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CRYPTOQUOTES

times the original estimate, was worth it — there was some doubt they would even be held.

But at the end, people forgot all the problems and all the troubles and talked about the athletic wizarry that dominated the Olympics between the Taiwan controversy at the beginning and the Russian controversy at the end.

France won the team equestrian Grand Prix Jumping Olympic gold medal Sunday to close out competition. Riding was the only event scheduled Sunday.

West Germany took the silver and Belgium the bronze in the competition.

"Farewell, Montreal. Until we meet in Moscow," the loudspeaker boomed through the jam packed Olympic Stadium as a crowd of more than 70,000 watched closing ceremonies Sunday night.

On the huge electric score-board flashed live televised pictures of Lenin Stadium where the 1980 opening ceremony will be held and of other sites in Moscow.

Dancers from Greece — the original home of the games, from Canada — the 1976 host, and from the Soviet Union — the next host, whirled through routines typical of their nations.

The five-ringed Olympic flag was ceremoniously lowered and carried from the arena while a five-gun salute boomed.

The Olympic torch was extinguished. Actually it was the third time it went out here — the first time was accidental when rain a week ago doused the fire. A workman relit it with a pocket lighter. Officials later put it out again and more solemnly relit it with the official fire burning at one of the secondary Olympic sites.

Unfortunately for the United States, this year, for the first time in history, none of the big heroes were Americans. Some of the U.S. athletes did stand out, like swimmer John Naber, a winner of four gold medals, but the athletes people were talking the most about the last two weeks all came from somewhere else.

The were:

• Nadia Comaneci, the little 14-year-old daughter of a poor machinist from Romania, who dazzled judges with her routines, became the first "perfect" gymnast in Olympic history, and won three gold medals;

• Kornelia Ender, the 17-year-old daughter of an East German army officer who won four swimming gold medals, matching the most ever by a woman in the Olympics, and at the end held a tearful reunion with a grandmother who had defected to the United Sates when Kornelia was five months old;

• Alberto Juantorena and Teofilo Stevenson, "el caballo" and "el toro," the two swift, strong Cubans who both won unprecedented victories. Juantorena became the first man to win the 400 and 800 meter runs in the same Olympics, Stevenson — with four straight knockouts — became the first heavyweight boxing champion to defend his title.

• And Lasse Viren, a 27-year old policeman from Finland whose training regimen includes 15 miles of running a day and large doses of reindeer milk, became the first man to win both the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs in two different Olympics.

Despite all of this, however, the Olympics were not a debacle for the United States, and for that, thanks go to the basketball team, the men swimmers, and the boxers.

Americans won 34 gold medals and 94 total medals, which is exactly one more of both than they took home from Munich four years ago. There also were 35 silver and 25 bronze medals. Once again, the Soviet Union had more than anyone else, 47 gold, 43 silver and 35 bronze, a total 125. East Germany was second in gold medals with 40 but third in total with 90.

The most emotional and, to people in the United States, most important of all the American victories, came in basketball. The U.S., cheated out of a gold medal four years ago in Munich when officials gave the Soviet Union a second, and then a third, chance to play the final three seconds, had only one difficult game, oddly enough against Puerto Rico, whose star was Butch Lee, who plays for Marquette University.

In the final, Adrian Dantley scored 30 points to help the U.S. defeat Yugoslavia 95-74 for the title. And the Americans had the satisfaction that one of the men helping hand out their gold medals was William Jones, secretary-general of the International Amateur Basketball Association and the man who made the rulings that gave Russia the gold in 1972.

Twelve of the 13 men's swimming events were won by Americans, all but one of them in world record time. This year, there was no Mark Spitz, Naber coming closest by winning both backstrokes and swimming on two winning relay teams.

The boxing successes tied a U.S. record, set when the Americans won five titles in 1952 at Helsinki. This year a pair of ferocious brothers, Michael and Leon Spinks of St. Louis, led the way, and both scored knockouts in the finals. Leo Randolph, Howard Davis and Ray Leonard also won.

Track and field, however, the traditional focal point of the Olympics, was a disaster. The U.S. won only four individual gold medals in 21 events, Mac Wilkins in the discus, Edwin Moses in the 400-meter hurdles, Arnie Robinson in the long jump and Bruce Jenner in the decathlon.

The toughest security operation in the history of the Olympics was rewarded Sunday when the Summer Games closed "without a single serious incident," a military spokesman said.

The highly-visible protection network, involving some 16,000 fully-armed troops, police and private guards "apparently scared potential trouble-makers away from Montreal," said Maj. Reg O'Donnell. "The general concensus is that the security operation has been a tremendous success."

Olympic organizers were concerned that terrorists groups, ranging from Arab nationalists to Quebec Separatists, might try to use the games as a platform for their demands. With visiting Queen Elizabeth and her entire family, and the Israeli athletes high on the potential target list, security planning was detailed and no threat, however unlikely, was ignored.

Bodyguards were assigned to American high jumper Dwight Stones when a threat was made against his life, apparently by French Canadians angered by his criticism of the Olympic organization. Press Chief Louis Chantigny also was given special protection after a personal threat was made.

Cubs sweep past St. Louis, 2-1

Things are looking up.

The Cubs' 2-1 win over the Cardinals Sunday moved the Wrigley's into fourth place, just a few percentage points ahead of the sagging Cardinals.

And the Cubs did it behind the pitching of Ray Burris, who went 10 innings to bring home the win and a Cubs' sweep of the three-game Cardinals series.

Burris was superb, scattering but five hits in the contest, witnessed by more than 25,000 on a beautiful day at Wrigley Field.

But the pitching of Burris was overshadowed most of the way by his opposition, big John Denny. The big right-hander had a no hitter for 7 2/3 innings. Denny, too, went the distance, but took the loss.

The Cubs scored a run in the eighth when Pete LaCock singled in Bill Madlock to break the scorless tie.

But the Cards came back to tie the score in the top of the ninth when LaCock booted Keith Hernandez' grounder, allowing Willie Crawford to score. Crawford got on via a three-base error by Cubs' leftfielder Jose Cardenal.

But LaCock triumphed in the end as his single with two outs in the 10th drove home the winning run.

The Cubs open a four game series with Philadelphia at Wrigley Field today with an afternoon contest. Steve Carlton (11-4) is the scheduled starting pitcher for the Phillies while Bill Bonham (6-9) will start for the Cubs

Sox 'Goose' Angels, 2-1, to close road trip

ANAHEIM, Calif. — As usual, the Sox could score but a few runs for starting pitcher Rich Gossage, but two was all "The Goose" needed.

Gossage, who'd lost his last seven games while his mates could score but eight runs during that streak, got his first win since June 9th as the Sox closed out their West Coast road trip with a 2-1 win over California here Sunday.

Gossage, now 6-10, scattered five hits and didn't allow an earned run as he went the distance. Frank Tanana also went the distance for the Angels and took the loss.

Ralph Garr turned on the speed to get the Sox the go ahead run in the eighth.

Garr legged a double into a triple, then streaked home on Jorge Orta's ground out to score the only earned run of the contest.

Singles by Orta and Lamar Johnson and an error by shortstop Mario Guerrero on Bill Stein's potential double play ball, brought home the first Sox run.

The Angels scored on Ron Jackson's single that drove home Bill Melton.

The Sox open a homestand at Comiskey Park Tuesday night against the Oakland A's after an off day today.

Tennis

Harrison Bowes of Deerfield won the singles division of the Illinois State Men's Singles and Doubles Tournament held at Arlington Indoor Tennis Club Sunday.

Bowes defeated Bill Kerr of Glencoe, 6-3, 6-1 to take the singles title. Then Bowes teamed up with Bob Breckenridge of Palatine to take the Doubles division, 6-4, 6-3, defeating a team of Tom Kreis of Lake Zurich and Jim Musgrave of Elk Grove Village.

2 more defections at Olympic games

OTTAWA—Two more persons "connected with the Olympics" Sunday asked the Canadian government for permission to remain in the country permanently, bringing to five the number of defections during the Summer Games, an immigration spokesman said.

The spokesman said the two approached immigration officials in Montreal within 90 minutes of each other Sunday "and asked for permanent resident status."

At their request, he declined to identify them or to say if they were athletes, "but they are connected with the Olympics" he said.

"They came in and applied for permission to remain in the country and asked us to retain the whole thing as confidential. I cannot say where they are at this time."

Meanwhile, Sergei Nemtsanov, a 17-year-old diver from the Soviet Union who is seeking resident status in Canada, Sunday was given permission to remain in the country until his case is resolved.

A 'Minister's Permit' allows Nemtsanov, who defected last Thursday, to stay in Canada past the expiry of his Aug. 31 visa.

The permit was issued Sunday shortly after Nemtsanov's first face-to-face meeting with Soviet officials since his defection. The meeting was arranged by lawyers Alex K. Paterson and David E. Matheson, of Montreal and Toronto.

Viren top Olympic athlete: writers

MONTREAL—Lasse Viren, the flying Finn who became the first runner ever to win both the 5,000 meter and 10,000 meter run in two straight Olympic games, was named the outstanding athlete of the 1976 games Sunday in a poll of United Press International reporters who covered the competition.

Viren received 15 votes in the voting by writers from North and South America and Europe, nosing out Nadia Comaneci, the 14-year-old Romanian gymnastic star who won three gold medals while en route to scoring seven perfect marks of 10. Comaneci received 12 votes.

Viren, who was married four days before his 5,000 meter triumph, turned on a brilliant last-lap sprint to win that race and then returned to win the 10,000 meters as well, again with a late sprint to draw away from several contenders.

Sting clinch playoff spot with 3-1 win

The Sting clinched a playoff berth Sunday with a 3-1 come-from-behind win over visiting St. Louis at Soldier Field.

All Sting goals came in the second half after St. Louis had taken a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Jimmy Kelly scored the first Sting goal. John Kowalik scored the next two for the Sting, his eighth and ninth goals of the season.

Now . . . better than ever!

Curtain falls on storied XXI Olympiad

times the original estimate, was worth it — there was some doubt they would even be held.

But at the end, people forgot all the problems and all the troubles and talked about the athletic wizarry that dominated the Olympics between the Taiwan controversy at the beginning and the Russian controversy at the end.

France won the team equestrian Grand Prix Jumping Olympic gold medal Sunday to close out competition. Riding was the only event scheduled Sunday.

West Germany took the silver and Belgium the bronze in the competition.

"Farewell, Montreal. Until we meet in Moscow," the loudspeaker boomed through the jam packed Olympic Stadium as a crowd of more than 70,000 watched closing ceremonies Sunday night.

On the huge electric score-board flashed live televised pictures of Lenin Stadium where the 1980 opening ceremony will be held and of other sites in Moscow.

Dancers from Greece — the original home of the games, from Canada — the 1976 host, and from the Soviet Union — the next host, whirled through routines typical of their nations.

The five-ringed Olympic flag was ceremoniously lowered and carried from the arena while a five-gun salute boomed.

The Olympic torch was extinguished. Actually it was the third time it went out here — the first time was accidental when rain a week ago doused the fire. A workman relit it with a pocket lighter. Officials later put it out again and more solemnly relit it with the official fire burning at one of the secondary Olympic sites.

Unfortunately for the United States, this year, for the first time in history, none of the big heroes were Americans. Some of the U.S. athletes did stand out, like swimmer John Naber, a winner of four gold medals, but the athletes people were talking the most about the last two weeks all came from somewhere else.

The were:

• Nadia Comaneci, the little 14-year-old daughter of a poor machinist from Romania, who dazzled judges with her routines, became the first "perfect" gymnast in Olympic history, and won three gold medals;

• Kornelia Ender, the 17-year-old daughter of an East German army officer who won four swimming gold medals, matching the most ever by a woman in the Olympics, and at the end held a tearful reunion with a grandmother who had defected to the United Sates when Kornelia was five months old;

• Alberto Juantorena and Teofilo Stevenson, "el caballo" and "el toro," the two swift, strong Cubans who both won unprecedented victories. Juantorena became the first man to win the 400 and 800 meter runs in the same Olympics, Stevenson — with four straight knockouts — became the first heavyweight boxing champion to defend his title.

• And Lasse Viren, a 27-year old policeman from Finland whose training regimen includes 15 miles of running a day and large doses of reindeer milk, became the first man to win both the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs in two different Olympics.

Despite all of this, however, the Olympics were not a debacle for the United States, and for that, thanks go to the basketball team, the men swimmers, and the boxers.

Americans won 34 gold medals and 94 total medals, which is exactly one more of both than they took home from Munich four years ago. There also were 35 silver and 25 bronze medals. Once again, the Soviet Union had more than anyone else, 47 gold, 43 silver and 35 bronze, a total 125. East Germany was second in gold medals with 40 but third in total with 90.

The most emotional and, to people in the United States, most important of all the American victories, came in basketball. The U.S., cheated out of a gold medal four years ago in Munich when officials gave the Soviet Union a second, and then a third, chance to play the final three seconds, had only one difficult game, oddly enough against Puerto Rico, whose star was Butch Lee, who plays for Marquette University.

In the final, Adrian Dantley scored 30 points to help the U.S. defeat Yugoslavia 95-74 for the title. And the Americans had the satisfaction that one of the men helping hand out their gold medals was William Jones, secretary-general of the International Amateur Basketball Association and the man who made the rulings that gave Russia the gold in 1972.

Twelve of the 13 men's swimming events were won by Americans, all but one of them in world record time. This year, there was no Mark Spitz, Naber coming closest by winning both backstrokes and swimming on two winning relay teams.

The boxing successes tied a U.S. record, set when the Americans won five titles in 1952 at Helsinki. This year a pair of ferocious brothers, Michael and Leon Spinks of St. Louis, led the way, and both scored knockouts in the finals. Leo Randolph, Howard Davis and Ray Leonard also won.

Track and field, however, the traditional focal point of the Olympics, was a disaster. The U.S. won only four individual gold medals in 21 events, Mac Wilkins in the discus, Edwin Moses in the 400-meter hurdles, Arnie Robinson in the long jump and Bruce Jenner in the decathlon.

The toughest security operation in the history of the Olympics was rewarded Sunday when the Summer Games closed "without a single serious incident," a military spokesman said.

The highly-visible protection network, involving some 16,000 fully-armed troops, police and private guards "apparently scared potential trouble-makers away from Montreal," said Maj. Reg O'Donnell. "The general concensus is that the security operation has been a tremendous success."

Olympic organizers were concerned that terrorists groups, ranging from Arab nationalists to Quebec Separatists, might try to use the games as a platform for their demands. With visiting Queen Elizabeth and her entire family, and the Israeli athletes high on the potential target list, security planning was detailed and no threat, however unlikely, was ignored.

Bodyguards were assigned to American high jumper Dwight Stones when a threat was made against his life, apparently by French Canadians angered by his criticism of the Olympic organization. Press Chief Louis Chantigny also was given special protection after a personal threat was made.

Cubs sweep past St. Louis, 2-1

Things are looking up.

The Cubs' 2-1 win over the Cardinals Sunday moved the Wrigley's into fourth place, just a few percentage points ahead of the sagging Cardinals.

And the Cubs did it behind the pitching of Ray Burris, who went 10 innings to bring home the win and a Cubs' sweep of the three-game Cardinals series.

Burris was superb, scattering but five hits in the contest, witnessed by more than 25,000 on a beautiful day at Wrigley Field.

But the pitching of Burris was overshadowed most of the way by his opposition, big John Denny. The big right-hander had a no hitter for 7 2/3 innings. Denny, too, went the distance, but took the loss.

The Cubs scored a run in the eighth when Pete LaCock singled in Bill Madlock to break the scorless tie.

But the Cards came back to tie the score in the top of the ninth when LaCock booted Keith Hernandez' grounder, allowing Willie Crawford to score. Crawford got on via a three-base error by Cubs' leftfielder Jose Cardenal.

But LaCock triumphed in the end as his single with two outs in the 10th drove home the winning run.

The Cubs open a four game series with Philadelphia at Wrigley Field today with an afternoon contest. Steve Carlton (11-4) is the scheduled starting pitcher for the Phillies while Bill Bonham (6-9) will start for the Cubs

Sox 'Goose' Angels, 2-1, to close road trip

ANAHEIM, Calif. — As usual, the Sox could score but a few runs for starting pitcher Rich Gossage, but two was all "The Goose" needed.

Gossage, who'd lost his last seven games while his mates could score but eight runs during that streak, got his first win since June 9th as the Sox closed out their West Coast road trip with a 2-1 win over California here Sunday.

Gossage, now 6-10, scattered five hits and didn't allow an earned run as he went the distance. Frank Tanana also went the distance for the Angels and took the loss.

Ralph Garr turned on the speed to get the Sox the go ahead run in the eighth.

Garr legged a double into a triple, then streaked home on Jorge Orta's ground out to score the only earned run of the contest.

Singles by Orta and Lamar Johnson and an error by shortstop Mario Guerrero on Bill Stein's potential double play ball, brought home the first Sox run.

The Angels scored on Ron Jackson's single that drove home Bill Melton.

The Sox open a homestand at Comiskey Park Tuesday night against the Oakland A's after an off day today.

2 more defections at Olympic games

OTTAWA—Two more persons "connected with the Olympics" Sunday asked the Canadian government for permission to remain in the country permanently, bringing to five the number of defections during the Summer Games, an immigration spokesman said.

The spokesman said the two approached immigration officials in Montreal within 90 minutes of each other Sunday "and asked for permanent resident status."

At their request, he declined to identify them or to say if they were athletes, "but they are connected with the Olympics" he said.

"They came in and applied for permission to remain in the country and asked us to retain the whole thing as confidential. I cannot say where they are at this time."

Meanwhile, Sergei Nemtsanov, a 17-year-old diver from the Soviet Union who is seeking resident status in Canada, Sunday was given permission to remain in the country until his case is resolved.

A 'Minister's Permit' allows Nemtsanov, who defected last Thursday, to stay in Canada past the expiry of his Aug. 31 visa.

The permit was issued Sunday shortly after Nemtsanov's first face-to-face meeting with Soviet officials since his defection. The meeting was arranged by lawyers Alex K. Paterson and David E. Matheson, of Montreal and Toronto.

Viren top Olympic athlete: writers

MONTREAL—Lasse Viren, the flying Finn who became the first runner ever to win both the 5,000 meter and 10,000 meter run in two straight Olympic games, was named the outstanding athlete of the 1976 games Sunday in a poll of United Press International reporters who covered the competition.

Viren received 15 votes in the voting by writers from North and South America and Europe, nosing out Nadia Comaneci, the 14-year-old Romanian gymnastic star who won three gold medals while en route to scoring seven perfect marks of 10. Comaneci received 12 votes.

Viren, who was married four days before his 5,000 meter triumph, turned on a brilliant last-lap sprint to win that race and then returned to win the 10,000 meters as well, again with a late sprint to draw away from several contenders.

Sting clinch playoff spot with 3-1 win

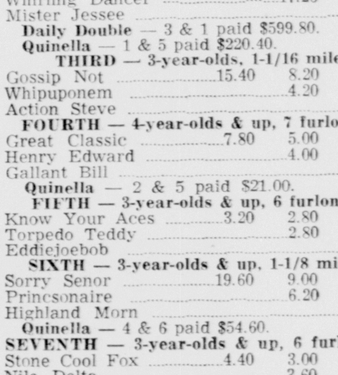

The Sting clinched a playoff berth Sunday with a 3-1 come-from-behind win over visiting St. Louis at Soldier Field.

All Sting goals came in the second half after St. Louis had taken a 1-0 lead in the first half.

Jimmy Kelly scored the first Sting goal. John Kowalik scored the next two for the Sting, his eighth and ninth goals of the season.

Now . . . better than ever!

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

THE UMPIRE seems more excited about Steve Van Vleck's two-out, third-inning triple than Van Vleck himself, who busily dusts off his uniform. Maine West outfielder's triple went to waste Friday at Comiskey Park as Hinsdale Central triumphed 2-0 for summer league high school championship.

Arlington advances with 11-4 victory over Lions

by DON FRISKE

Logan Square can finally rest its pitching arms. The season is over.

Arlington took advantage of the tired Lions' pitching staff by scoring nine runs in the last four innings Sunday to clinch the Ninth District American Legion title with an 11-4 victory.

The Lions used four pitchers Sunday, each having less than three days rest. Starter Dan Stoltz and reliever Gary Schreiber worked Friday night. Jim Simmerman pitched 7 2/3 innings Thursday night and Keith Pecka went nine innings Saturday.

Logan Square had a 4-3 lead going into the bottom of the sixth on a solo home run by Pat Rooney over the center field fence.

It was Rooney's second shot of the day. In the first, he hit one over the left field fence with a man on to give the Lions a 2-0 lead.

Arlington went ahead for the first time in the bottom of the sixth with three runs.

Guy Tenuta led off with a double to left and was followed by Paul Marsillo, who reached first on a bunt. Mike Mayerck then singled to send Tenuta to the plate, tying the score.

Tom Barnard reached on a fielder's choice before a double by John Vukovich scored Marsillo and a single by Don Stebbins completed the scoring in the inning with Arlington ahead for good, 6-4.

Arlington added two in the seventh on two singles, two walks and a double. The lead was padded with three more runs in the eighth on three walks and two singles.

Either team had a chance to take a big lead in the first inning.

Following Rooney's home run, the Lions had runners on first and second with no outs, but failed to score.

In Arlington's first, Stoltz ran into control trouble. He walked Marsillo with one out, got the next batter on a pop out, but then walked the next three to force in a run.

Simmerman came in with a 2-0 count on Brett Frase. He threw another ball before delivering two strikes. A fly out ended the inning.

Arlington tied the score in the second when Gary Kempton walked, stole second, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a wild pickoff throw.

The Lions took the lead again in the third when Jim Thompson scored on Mike Hermanson's triple. Arlington tied the game again in the fifth with an unearned run.

Logan Square pushed the series to the limit of five games by defeating Arlington 12-5 Saturday. Hermanson drove in five runs with three singles and a sacrifice fly while Bucky Black collected four straight singles and two walks.

Thompson and Rooney scored three runs each to help Pecka earn the victory.

In the third game, which extended for an inning from Friday night, Todd Walker saved a 5-3 Arlington victory.

Arlington now advances to the Cook County Tournament, starting Thursday at Northbrook. Coach Lloyd Meyer said the team will hold a few light practices before the opener.

"We're ready," Meyer said. "This is about the finest bunch of kids I've had and I'd like to see them go far for this reason, if nothing else."

If medals were awarded for attitudes...

Jim Murray

MONTREAL — There used to be an old newspaper contest called "What is wrong with this picture?" In it, a series of harmonious things would be shown with one jarring note. It was up to you to pick the one that was out of sync.

With this in mind, can you tell what is wrong with this picture?

The scene is the interview room of the Olympic Stadium where the powerful Cuban runner, Alberto Juantorena, who has just broken the world 800-meter record in winning the Olympic gold, is on microphone. Juantorena, who appeared to weep as the Cuban anthem was played at the victory ceremony, is asked if he tried for a world record.

"I did not go after a world record. I was going to win the race for Cuba and our glorious revolution. I dedicate this medal to our great leader, Fidel Castro. This is the anniversary of the assault on the Moncada Barracks in 1953 by the revolutionaries. I dedicate this to Fidel Castro and those brave students.

"Have I worked in the sugar fields? Yes, as any revolutionary, I worked in the sugar fields. It was an honor for me so to help the economy of our country and I would do it again. It would be an honor for me again to help the economy of our country and our revolution and for our system in which people are supreme. Have I met Fidel Castro? Yes, and it was a great honor and privilege. I was originally a basketball player but I was not good enough and they asked me to run the 800 to increase Cuba's medal position. I am proud to do this."

As we leave Comrade Juantorena choked with emotion and patriotism, we pan over to burly American Maurice (Mac) Wilkins, who never worked in the sugar fields in his life but who sells track shoes in Eugene, Ore., when he does anything. Wilkins has just won the discus gold medal.

"Did I win the gold medal for the United States or for myself? I would have to say it was an achievement for myself. It's nice that there were a lot of Americans here to root for me but basically, it was myself. I reached the position I am in without help from anybody. I am not saying America is a bad country but I was the one who threw the discus. I'm not going to share it with the U.S. Do I hope it will inshure the rest of the U.S.? I hope anybody who could be inspired, by it will be inspired, whether our country or any other.

"Was it easy? Well, I was a little disappointed in my performance but as to its being difficult, there is no comparison to the USOC (United States Olympic Committee) hassles. It is extremely embarassing to be associated with people like that who have hassled me and threatened to throw me off the team along with (shot putter) Al Feuerbach. I don't want to go into it, as Al and I are going to call a press conference on it.

"Al and I trained at Three Rivers, halfway between here and Quebec, to avoid all that scene in the Olympic Village and I would hope that we could do the same in the Moscow Olympics — maybe train at Helsinki away from all the pressures and hassles of a village. Do I seem to be questioning the Olympics? Well, I have to question why all the rigamarole and hassles of the Olympics are necessary every four years for what is just another track meet."

What is wrong with that picture, of course, is that it is incomplete. Missing is poor old Irving Boob from East Obscurity, Ill. Irving's event is bill-paying. He is an Olympian. He has drawn 2,000 consecutive paychecks, taken the garbage out once a week for 37 years, washed 8,000 windows and his car 1,500 times. He has paid taxes for 41 consecutive years, he will own his home by 1998, holds the record on his block for putting kids through college, contributed to the Olympic Fund for which he has a patch to wear on his worn jacket and hasn't missed a day at the plant or mine since he was discharged in World War II. He has never been to Montreal. Or Three Rivers. Can't afford it and the car payments, too.

As we look in, Irving is having a microphone thrust in his face to get his views in front of an international battery of journalists from every country in the world. The interpreter asks, "Can you tell us, Irving, your views on the terrible suffering and sacrfices our brave athletes are making in the field?"

Irving answers:

"Well, to tell you the truth, I kind of like it on television when our Flag goes up and all that but if it ticks a guy off who has to throw a platter, why, I wouldn't object. I wouldn't want anything to interfere with his concentration. I mean, having to pick up a one-pound plate and all that is wearing on a man, a pressure event like that where you only get six throws and have to sit around or nap in between must be hard on a guy. I was saying to the guys in the foundry just the other day, we ought to take better care of our guys.

"I suppose an athlete can stay anywheres he wants to. 'Course, I hear tell they put up $1.3 billion to build that big Olympic Village and all that for those athletes and I suppose it would be nice if they would use it. But, shoot! if you can get a spiked-shoe company or rich sponsor to put you up at your own training camp, why, take it! I hear some of those track-and-field guys are down to their last Porsches and their apartment at the Marina only has one telephone.

" 'Course, as my wife says, when someone throws a $1.3 billion party, maybe you shouldn't go around criticizing the silverware. But what does she know? She thinks throwing a spear looks easy and says if they want to see some plate-throwing, they should have seen her mother. Why, she says, these guys don't even have to hit anything with their plates. What kind of an event is that?! Well, you know how women are. I tell her plate-throwing must be difficult. They give you a free college education for it worth $12,000, don't they? I tell her you don't see nobody offering any steel-puddlers any college scholarships, so which do you think is more difficult?

" 'Course, I can imagine a guy not wanting to sleep with 12 guys to an apartment and have to share a bath. 'Course, I slept 12 to a room most of my life but we had two toilets. Of course, they were out in the back yard. We didn't have to share a shower, either. We didn't have any to share.

"I think if a guy doesn't like competing for the United States of America, he should be allowed to pick the country he does want to compete for. If he's going to compete just for himself, I'd like to get back the five bucks I contributed for the Olympic Fund. I could buy a round across the street from the steel mill with that.

" 'Course, you'd have to make it clear you were just competing for that country just the once. I mean, I get the feeling if you went down to the Village and asked all those guys from East Europe and Asia and all if they wanted to compete for the U.S. and they could come home to Oregon or California or Kansas afterward to go to school and live, we might suddenly be up in our earses in plate-throwers. They might even be willing to suffer through 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' I bet some of them would bawl like a baby when the Flag went up.

"Do you think some of our guys might chose Romania? 'Course, my wife, who doesn't understand those things at all, says she kind of likes what that other plate-thrower of ours, John Powell, had to say at the press conference. 'If America's such a terrible place, how come none of our guys are trying to defect?'

"But what does she know about it? Give you an idea how dumb she is, she says, 'How come none of our boys say they're winning this for the 200th anniversary of the Declaration and the Bicentennial? Is she a card?!'"

Swim-athon to fight heart disease

Swimmers and sponors are being sought to participate in a Swim For Heart Marathon at 65 suburban swimming pools next Sunday to benefit the Chicago Heart Assn. and its suburban divisions.

Sponsored by the Suburban Parks and Recreation Assn. (SPRA), the one-day event will involve the cooperation of over 44 suburban park districts, recreation departments, and private swim clubs.

Coordinator of the event is Elena Ruane, superintendent of recreation for the Palatine Park District and president-elect of the SPRA. She emphasized that this is the first time various organizations have joined together to sponsor a fund-raising event of this magnitude to fight heart disease.

Funds raised will go toward research, education, and community programs in the field of heart disease.

Summer camp gives out awards

It's nice that there were a lot of Americans here to root for me but basically, it was myself. I reached the position I am in without help from anybody. I am not saying America is a bad country but I was the one who threw the discus. I'm not going to share it with the U.S. Do I hope it will inshure the rest of the U.S.? I hope anybody who could be inspired, by it will be inspired, whether our country or any other.

"Was it easy? Well, I was a little disappointed in my performance but as to its being difficult, there is no comparison to the USOC (United States Olympic Committee) hassles. It is extremely embarassing to be associated with people like that who have hassled me and threatened to throw me off the team along with (shot putter) Al Feuerbach. I don't want to go into it, as Al and I are going to call a press conference on it.

"Al and I trained at Three Rivers, halfway between here and Quebec, to avoid all that scene in the Olympic Village and I would hope that we could do the same in the Moscow Olympics — maybe train at Helsinki away from all the pressures and hassles of a village. Do I seem to be questioning the Olympics? Well, I have to question why all the rigamarole and hassles of the Olympics are necessary every four years for what is just another track meet."

What is wrong with that picture, of course, is that it is incomplete. Missing is poor old Irving Boob from East Obscurity, Ill. Irving's event is bill-paying. He is an Olympian. He has drawn 2,000 consecutive paychecks, taken the garbage out once a week for 37 years, washed 8,000 windows and his car 1,500 times. He has paid taxes for 41 consecutive years, he will own his home by 1998, holds the record on his block for putting kids through college, contributed to the Olympic Fund for which he has a patch to wear on his worn jacket and hasn't missed a day at the plant or mine since he was discharged in World War II. He has never been to Montreal. Or Three Rivers. Can't afford it and the car payments, too.

As we look in, Irving is having a microphone thrust in his face to get his views in front of an international battery of journalists from every country in the world. The interpreter asks, "Can you tell us, Irving, your views on the terrible suffering and sacrfices our brave athletes are making in the field?"

Irving answers:

"Well, to tell you the truth, I kind of like it on television when our Flag goes up and all that but if it ticks a guy off who has to throw a platter, why, I wouldn't object. I wouldn't want anything to interfere with his concentration. I mean, having to pick up a one-pound plate and all that is wearing on a man, a pressure event like that where you only get six throws and have to sit around or nap in between must be hard on a guy. I was saying to the guys in the foundry just the other day, we ought to take better care of our guys.

"I suppose an athlete can stay anywheres he wants to. 'Course, I hear tell they put up $1.3 billion to build that big Olympic Village and all that for those athletes and I suppose it would be nice if they would use it. But, shoot! if you can get a spiked-shoe company or rich sponsor to put you up at your own training camp, why, take it! I hear some of those track-and-field guys are down to their last Porsches and their apartment at the Marina only has one telephone.

" 'Course, as my wife says, when someone throws a $1.3 billion party, maybe you shouldn't go around criticizing the silverware. But what does she know? She thinks throwing a spear looks easy and says if they want to see some plate-throwing, they should have seen her mother. Why, she says, these guys don't even have to hit anything with their plates. What kind of an event is that?! Well, you know how women are. I tell her plate-throwing must be difficult. They give you a free college education for it worth $12,000, don't they? I tell her you don't see nobody offering any steel-puddlers any college scholarships, so which do you think is more difficult?

" 'Course, I can imagine a guy not wanting to sleep with 12 guys to an apartment and have to share a bath. 'Course, I slept 12 to a room most of my life but we had two toilets. Of course, they were out in the back yard. We didn't have to share a shower, either. We didn't have any to share.

"I think if a guy doesn't like competing for the United States of America, he should be allowed to pick the country he does want to compete for. If he's going to compete just for himself, I'd like to get back the five bucks I contributed for the Olympic Fund. I could buy a round across the street from the steel mill with that.

" 'Course, you'd have to make it clear you were just competing for that country just the once. I mean, I get the feeling if you went down to the Village and asked all those guys from East Europe and Asia and all if they wanted to compete for the U.S. and they could come home to Oregon or California or Kansas afterward to go to school and live, we might suddenly be up in our earses in plate-throwers. They might even be willing to suffer through 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' I bet some of them would bawl like a baby when the Flag went up.

"Do you think some of our guys might chose Romania? 'Course, my wife, who doesn't understand those things at all, says she kind of likes what that other plate-thrower of ours, John Powell, had to say at the press conference. 'If America's such a terrible place, how come none of our guys are trying to defect?'

"But what does she know about it? Give you an idea how dumb she is, she says, 'How come none of our boys say they're winning this for the 200th anniversary of the Declaration and the Bicentennial? Is she a card?!"

Swim-athon to fight heart disease

Swimmers and sponors are being sought to participate in a Swim For Heart Marathon at 65 suburban swimming pools next Sunday to benefit the Chicago Heart Assn. and its suburban divisions.

Sponsored by the Suburban Parks and Recreation Assn. (SPRA), the one-day event will involve the cooperation of over 44 suburban park districts, recreation departments, and private swim clubs.

Coordinator of the event is Elena Ruane, superintendent of recreation for the Palatine Park District and president-elect of the SPRA. She emphasized that this is the first time various organizations have joined together to sponsor a fund-raising event of this magnitude to fight heart disease.

Funds raised will go toward research, education, and community programs in the field of heart disease.

Summer camp gives out awards

The St. Viator High School summer basketball camp completed another successful session recently with the naming of camp award winners. Making the announcement was St. Viator head cage coach Ron Cregier, who presided over the camp.

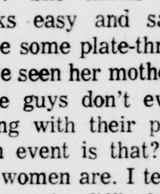

Ninth grade award winners were: Scott Kobus, most rebounds; Steve Bennedetto, most assists; Mike Collichio, best field goal percentage.

Seventh and eighth grade: Tom Benson, Chuck Jennings and Dave Gilbreth, most rebounds; Jim Sheehan, Tom Rieckel and Brian Weed, most assists; Bob Harig, Paul Augustyn and Dave Gilbreth, best field goal percentage.

Fifth and sixth grade: Steve Harrington and John Bostrum, most rebounds; Gary March and John Bostrum, most assists; Tom Halpin and Pat Donahue, best field goal percentage.

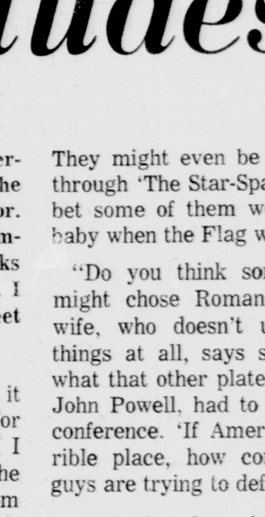

The camp attracted 190 boys this year.
